SIR JOHN SIMON REBUTS GERMAN CHARGE

HITLER'S INTENTION

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR IMPRESSED

LONG TALK IN BERLIN

Berlin, Oct. 17.
Herr Hitler gave a very favourable impression of his intentions in the course of a fifty-minute interview with the American Ambassador, Mr. Dodd.

At its conclusion, Mr. Dodd said he felt that the Chancellor was honestly perturbed over the Nazi assaults and was determined to end them.

Hitler also emphasised his desire for peace and aversion of war. He seemed anxious, said the Ambassador, to resume or continue contact with the rest of the world.

GERMANY'S INTENTIONS.

A semi-official statement emphasises that it is Germany's intention to observe the provisions of the Versailles Treaty and of the League Covenant.

At the same time, a denial is issued of a report that Germany has sent a Note to Signor Mussolini suggesting the re-opening of the disarmament negotiations.

ROME DENIAL.

Reuters' Rome correspondent made enquiries in official quarters with a similar result, an emphatic denial that Germany had notified her readiness to continue the disarmament discussions outside the League.

Meanwhile, Berlin political quarters draw attention to the importance of the statement by the American delegation at Geneva that they are not interested in the political or purely European aspects of disarmament and that the United States is not in any way politically allied to any European Power.

The latter declaration is interpreted as a significant hint which is warmly welcomed in Germany.—Reuter.

VON NEURATH'S REPLY.

"We discovered with disappointment and astonishment that a basis for disarmament negotiations no longer existed because the British plan, which had been unanimously adopted, no longer existed. It was not even recognised by its originators and was decisively changed." Baron von Neurath told foreign journalists to-day, when questioned as to Germany's grounds for withdrawal from Geneva.

The key position, he said, lay in the question whether the division of nations into groups of victors and vanquished was to be perpetuated or the principle recognised that all states were to be members of a unity of nations with equal rights.

PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN.

Outside of officialdom, Germany is now waiting for replies from responsible foreign statesmen. The Government itself is completely occupied in preparing an extensive propaganda drive throughout the country.

Chancellor Hitler has summoned all important Nazi leaders to Berlin for a series of conferences, to acquaint them with his policies for the coming week.

Telegrams are still arriving from all parts of the country, supporting the Chancellor's policy, and include one from Dr. von Bohlen, head of the League of German Industrialists.—Reuter.

Attention is drawn to the Telegraph's new mystery serial story, the second instalment of which is to be found in Page Three. The story is by the well-known author, Mr. Jefferson Farjeon, and is entitled "Shadows by the Sea."

GENEVA INCIDENT

Nazi Journalist Apologises

Geneva, Oct. 17.
The German journalist, who insulted Mr. Arthur Henderson to-day, subsequently called on him and offered an apology, which Mr. Henderson accepted saying that he regarded the incident as closed.—Reuter.

BIG INSURANCE BANKRUPTCY

RECEIVERSHIP ORDERED

CHICAGO CASE

Chicago, Oct. 17.
A sensation has been caused in the insurance world by news of the impending liquidation of the National Life Insurance Company of the United States.

The Superior Court Judge in Chicago to-day ordered the appointment of a Receiver to take over the affairs of the company.

The National Life Insurance Company has policies to a value of $197,000,000 outstanding.

The company is regarded as another victim of the depression and the collapse of security values from the high levels of a few years ago.

NEW PRISONER TAKES POISON

A dramatic scene occurred in the receiving room of Victoria Gaol yesterday when a newly sentenced prisoner took poison.

He was Yam Wal, only 22 years of age, who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for an opium offence.

Rushed to the prison hospital, the man died later. It is believed that he took arsenic. An inquest will be held to-day.

DESTROYER FLOTILLA FOR SYDNEY

To Be Lent To The Australian Navy

London, Oct. 17.
The destroyers Vampire and Voyager left Portsmouth to-day to join the Flotilla Leader, H.M.S. Stuart, and the destroyers Vendetta and Waterhog from Chatham and Devonport.

The whole flotilla will then sail for Sydney where they are due on December 21st, all the vessels having been lent by the British Navy to the Australian Navy.—British Wireless.

FRENCH ASIATIC FLEET

APPOINTMENT OF NEW ADMIRAL

Paris, Oct. 17.
Vice-Admiral Descottes Genon has been appointed to the command of the French naval forces in the Far East.—Reuter.

A LAST MOMENT DISASTER

UNABLE TO ACCEPT THE REASONS GIVEN

IMPORTANT SPEECH

London, Oct. 17.

Sir John Simon and Captain Anthony Eden reached London by air from Paris to-day on their return from Geneva.

When he reached the Foreign Office, Sir John Simon's attention was called to a report of a statement made last night by Baron von Neurath suggesting that the British Foreign Secretary had not accurately represented Germany's viewpoint as conveyed to him on October 6th.

Sir John stated: "I should indeed be sorry if there were any difference on a matter of fact with Baron von Neurath. My fellow countrymen may rest assured that the suggested inaccuracy is not on my side."

It was on October 6th that the German Charge D'Affaires in London communicated to Sir John Germany's "observations" on the disarmament situation.

A similar communication was made at the same time in Rome but not to the French or the United States Governments whose representatives had taken part in the earlier conversations.

These "observations" seriously affected the situation and immediately after hearing them, the British Foreign Secretary communicated them to the French and Italian Ambassadors in London.

Shortly after reaching London, the Foreign Secretary had a long conversation with the Prime Minister and Mr. Baldwin.—British Wireless.

MR. STANLEY BALDWIN'S DICTUM

Sir John Simon later this evening made a broadcast speech, which was linked up with the Empire through Daventry.

Britain still stands by the declaration made in December last year that Germany ought to receive equality of rights in a regime of security, said the Foreign Secretary in opening.

But, he added, a very serious fact had emerged since then which while not altering our pledge necessarily affects the detailed manner of its fulfilment.

POSITIVE ALARM.

Recent events, he said, have increased nervousness and the sense of positive alarm, which is the real reason why the heavily-armed States hesitate to weaken their armed forces.

"We all know the reasons for that anxiety," Sir John went on, emphasising that there was more anxiety in England about the international situation than for many years past, while on the Continent it was more acute still.

GENEVA EFFORTS.

Sir John Simon then detailed the steps taken at Geneva in efforts to meet Germany's demands and with the object of getting a closer approach to a basis for an agreement.

But when he asked Germany last week exactly what she meant by "sample" weapons, he was unable to obtain an explanation.

Instead of defining "samples," Germany's reply claimed a substantial re-armament from the very beginning.

THE FACTS.

Sir John Simon again rebutted von Neurath's accusation that he French police attempting to secure control of an anti-Hitler crowd in Paris recently.

SOVIET "SPIES" ARRESTED

CONSUL DEMANDS RELEASE

TERRITORIAL DISPUTE

Harbin, Oct. 18.

The arrival in Harbin of the Manchukuo gunboat Lin Min, with three alleged O.G.P.U. spies on board, of whom one was a Soviet soldier in uniform, has been greeted by a fresh exchange of protests between the Russian and Manchukuo diplomatic representatives here.

The Soviet Consul-General, M. Slavutsky, contends that the men were arrested in Soviet territory and is demanding their immediate release.

The Manchukuo representative insists that they were arrested in Manchukuo territory in the vicinity of Tachihou, and takes the opportunity to protest against the repeated infringements of Manchukuo's sovereign rights in the frontier zones, "of which the latest incident affords further conclusive proof."—Reuter.

LESS UNEMPLOYMENT ON TYNESIDE

Bigger Coal Exports; More Shipping

London, Oct. 17.
Conditions on the Tyne where the unemployment situation was the most acute, are continuing to show improvement.

To date 70,000 tons more of coal have been shipped from that area than in the corresponding period last year, while the number of ships laid up there is 54 fewer than a year ago.—British Wireless.

PORK AND CORN PRODUCTION

AMERICAN SCHEME ANNOUNCED

Washington, Oct. 17.
A control programme for corn and pig production has been issued by Mr. Wallace.

It is reported to include provision for processing taxes to compensate the farmers who reduce their corn acreage by at least 25 per cent. and their farrows of pigs by at least 25 per cent.—Reuter.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT

Over 600,000 New Jobs Claimed

Washington, Oct. 17.
Over 620,000 workers were re-employed during the month of September, according to statistics provided by seventeen leading industrial and business concerns in the United States.—Reuter.

SWING TO LABOUR

THE NORWEGIAN ELECTION

UNEMPLOYMENT AS MAIN ISSUE

Oslo, Oct. 18.

A decided swing to Labour was the feature of the Norwegian general elections yesterday.

No fewer than twenty-two seats have been captured by Labour candidates from other parties, doubtless due to the extensive programme submitted by Labour for dealing with the problems of unemployment relief.

The Conservatives, who have so far lost ten seats, proposed to lighten taxation. They had, prior to the election, refused an alliance with the new Fascist organisation, the National Union, headed by Major Quisling, a former member of the Cabinet, who is generally regarded as Norway's strong man.

STATE OF PARTIES.

The present state of the parties in the new Storting is as follows:
Labour ..... 69 seats.
Conservatives ..... 31 seats.
Liberals ..... 24 seats.
Agrarians ..... 22 seats.
Other parties ..... 4 seats.—Reuter.

WANCHAI FIRE

SOON EXTINGUISHED THIS MORNING

A small fire occurred this morning at about 11 a.m. in a tea-shop in Spring Garden Lane, Wanchai. Three appliances arrived to find that a quantity of grease accumulated in the chimney had taken fire and was blazing. Control was obtained within a few minutes.

BANK MAGNATE'S SALARY AND BONUSES

U.S. INQUIRY REVEALS

HEAVY LOSSES BY CHASE BANK

GERMAN LOANS

Washington, Oct. 17.
The extent of large payments made to Mr. Albert Wiggin, the chairman of the Chase National Bank, was revealed to-day during the Senate banking investigation.

The hearing was confined to matters dealing with the Chase Bank and the Chase Securities Corporation.

It was stated that Mr. Wiggin received bonuses exceeding a hundred thousand dollars every year, in addition to his normal salary of $200,000 per annum and in addition to a provision for a pension of $100,000 per annum after his retirement.

These heavy payments were made, it was pointed out, despite the fact that the bank had been experiencing heavy losses in recent years.

Mr. Wiggin was also a director of fifty-nine other big concerns, from which he was drawing annual payments ranging from $300 to $30,000 per annum.

MR. WIGGIN'S CAREER.

Mr. Wiggin started his career as a bank clerk 48 years ago and he was assistant cashier in a bank at Boston until 1897, when he began his climb to prominence by securing an appointment as vice-president of the Eliot National Bank in Boston. He first became connected with the Chase National Bank in 1904, was vice-president till 1911, president from 1911 to 1917, chairman of the board from 1918 to 1921, chairman of the board and president from 1921 to 1926 and chairman of the board afterwards.—Reuter.

GERMAN DEBTS.

Mr. Wiggin testified that John D. Rockefeller, Junior, was the biggest shareholder in the Chase Bank.

He also said that the German debt to all American banks in 1933 totalled between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000. The Chase share of this was originally about $100,000,000, but he managed to get this amount down to below $40,000,000.

He acknowledged that the Chase Bank had suffered "very large losses" for which he accepted responsibility as the "commander-in-chief."—Reuter.

STOCK MARKETS IMPROVE

WAR LOAN QUOTED AT 101.1/16D.

London, Oct. 17.

The Stock Market left off with a slightly better tendency, with War Loan 3 1/2 per cent. at 101 1/16.

The German 5 1/2 per cent. bonds were at 48, and the 7 per cent. at 75 1/2. Kamris and Transatlantics finished at the worst points.—British Wireless.

All day long Alec had slouched around and moped.

"Why don't you get your bicycle?" his mother said.

"I'm tired of that old bicycle."

"Old! You haven't had it a month. Go and give Duke a bath. That will keep you busy and dear only knows he needs it."

But Alec didn't care so much about that either.

"You were crazy for a dog and promised to take care of him. You were tired of him in two weeks."

"I'm not tired of him. But sometimes he's no fun. He just lies around to-day and sleeps."

"That's because it's hot. Well—let me see. I'll let you go to the pool if Eddie can go along."

"I'm tired of the pool. Been swimmin' there all summer."

A Mother's Problem

"I don't know what you can do then, Alec. You have a whole playroom full of toys. You have more things to play with than any child I know."

Alec made a face.

"I suppose you're worrying me for more money again. All right—go and get my bag. I can't have you lying around here growling like a bear."

"I've seen both the movies." "All right then. I'm going up and lie down. If you won't do anything, you won't, that's all. But I think you're just a spoiled little boy."

Alec sat for a while, then lifted his head. He heard hammering over in the direction of Eddie's house.

He found Eddie patching a hole in the back porch. Eddie's back porch was full of holes, and the front porch, and even some of the windows of his house.

In fact Eddie's house and Eddie's whole life was as different from Alec's as a sparrow's is from a canary's.

"Geel!" declared Alec enviously. "Can I help? Why didn't you tell me you were having so much fun?"

"This ain't fun. That is work. I gotta do it," said Eddie. "The bab' nearly busted his ankle this morning."

"I'll trade you," bargained Alec. "I'll let you ride my bike all afternoon if you let me saw those boards and nail 'em in. And I'll lend you Duke all day to-morrow and you can read my new book all the day after, and—"

"Come on and help. I can't go now, but I'll borrow your bike sometime. Now you take this board and you lay it—"

The have worked all afternoon.

A mottled suntan is nothing to brag about. Much better not to go in for suntan than to get splotted.

A girl who achieves her suntan in a bathing suit that ends somewhere around the shoulder blades and then appears in a low-necked evening dress that shows her untanned back below the rich glowing skin is, alas, no infrequent sight.

The thing to do is to go at suntan gradually, as I have always Alec's face, lost its fretful look. He went home dirty and tired—and happy.

"I wish I was Eddie," he said. "He has a good time. I never have anything to do. What did you bring me, Dad?"

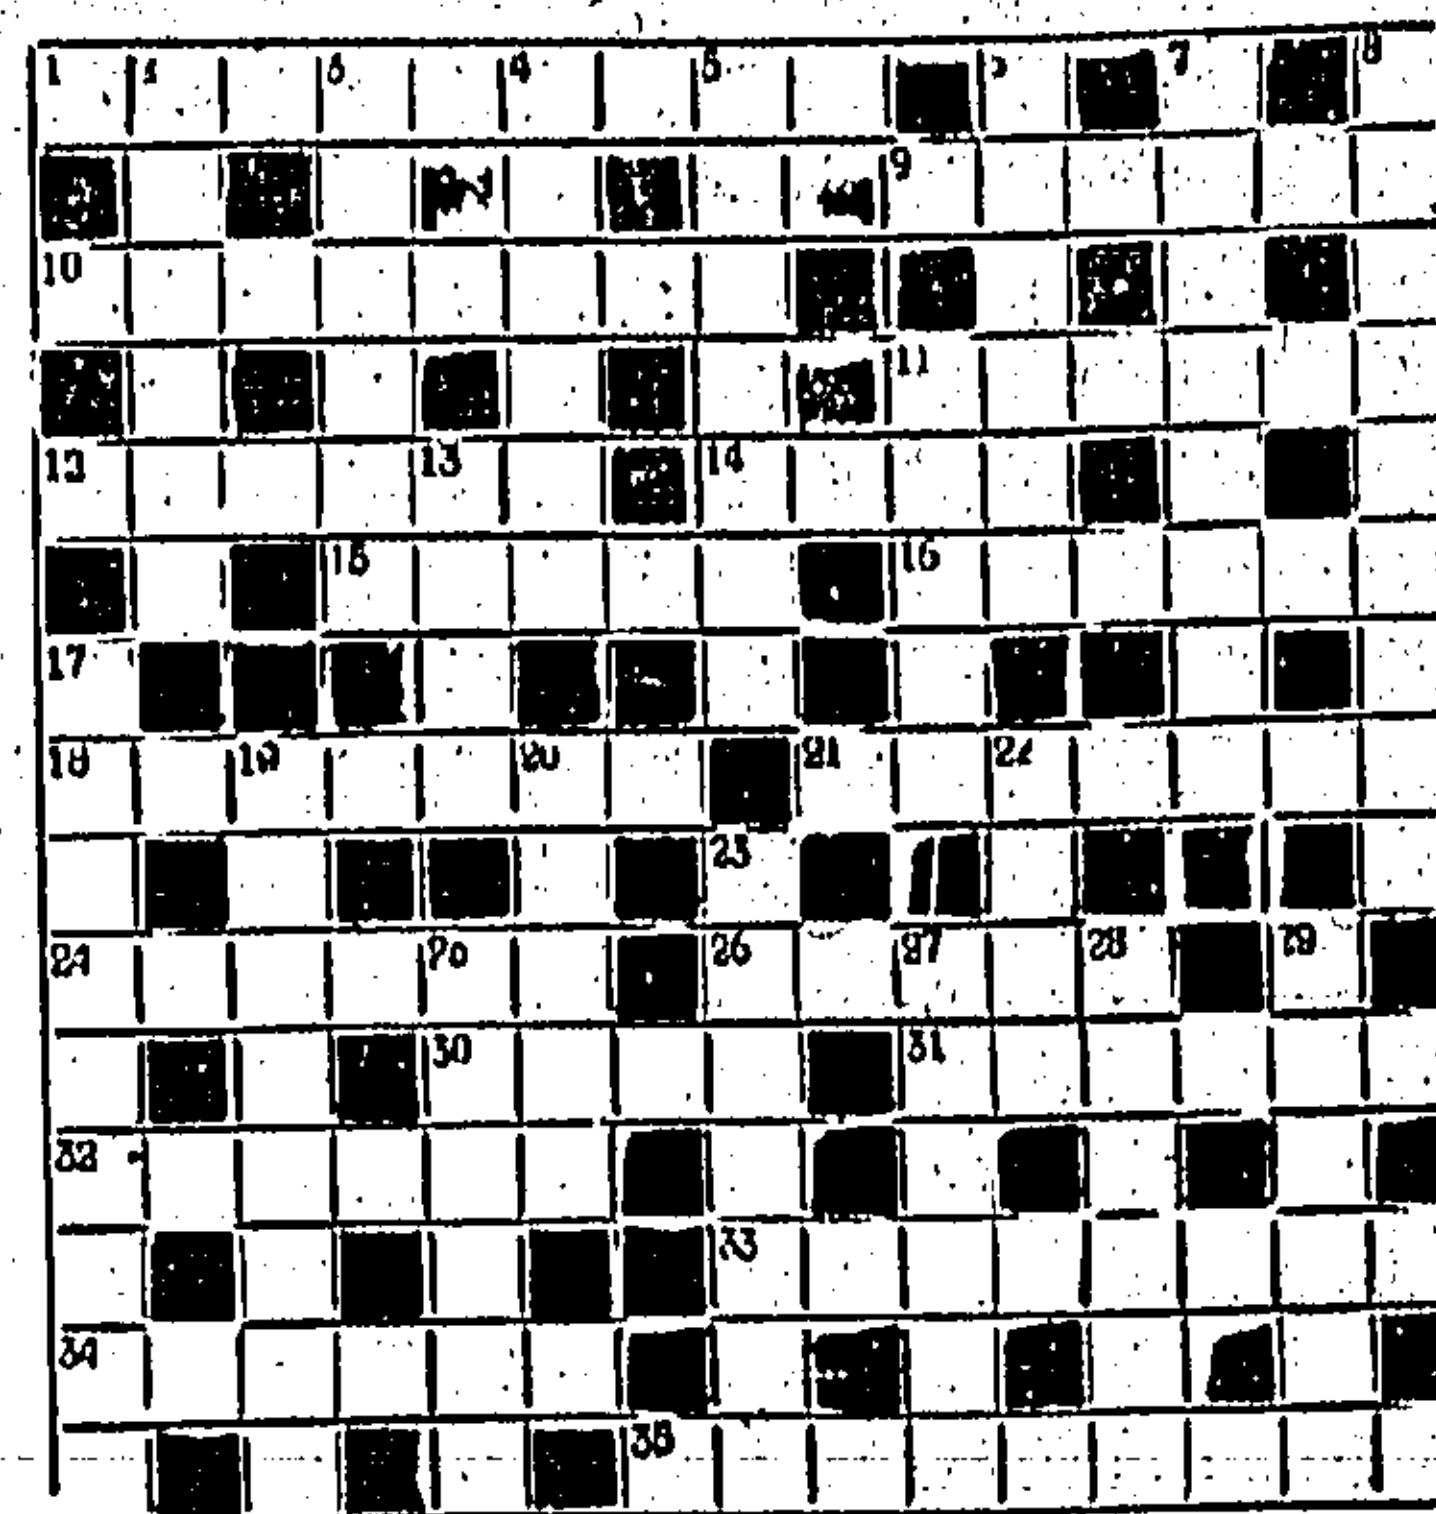

urged. But do it thoroughly! You can't get the upper insides of your arms, for instance, properly suntanned without actually turning them to the sun the proper number of hours to enrich their skin as the forearm is enriched in tone.

Nor can you get that under-the-chin part of you the right brown to go with your neck and nose without upturning your face, properly covered, while your under-the-chin tans.

The best way to get an oven suntan is to use one of the popular suntan oils. Spread this all over your skin before you venture forth. Then, remembering the way a roasterie browns his chickens, turn yourself about methodically, exposing the portions of your neck, arms and shoulders that need it most. The best way to get your back really brown is to wear a halter-strapped pajama suit. You can so easily loosen the top of the halter-strap while lying on your stomach!

Take this sun-tanning easily. But do a thorough job from the first.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

SYNOPSIS.

LEONARD SEFTON arrives at the seaside resort of Cravertley to find the residence of the Mervine Hotel, a man named Fyne. Most of the guests have left owing to the scandal. Sefton meets the "book" on the beach doing a little detective work. A mysterious stranger also appears.

CHAPTER II.

"At the Mermaid Hotel."

Miss Jessica Fyne, manageress and (it now appeared) proprietress of the Mermaid Hotel, looked up from her ledger and saw a pleasant young man standing before her. For a moment she forgot her ledger. It may have been because he looked so particularly pleasant; he was certainly trying to. But the moment passed, and her mind reverted speedily to facts and figures, and to the purely commercial hope that this man had come to book a room, and not merely to have tea.

His first words proved that he had come with the former object, and in reply to his enquiry she said that she had a room, and would show it to him.

"Do you know how long you will be requiring it for?" she asked, in a business-like voice.

Leonard Sefton sat upon an insane impulse to reply, "Until we have found your father," and remarked that he was not sure.

"Probably a week, at least," he said. "I suppose you can let me have one with a sea view?"

"All the rooms have sea views," she answered, with a little smile.

"We are on the point, you see, I could let you have one of our best rooms overlooking the tennis lawn—it's just been vacated."

"Sounds exactly what I'd like," nodded Leonard. "You're most delightfully situated here."

She took a key, numbered "Seven," off a hook, and emerged from her little office. As she did so, a rather glum-looking man came down the wide stair-case, and approached. Leonard possessed a keen sense of observation, which this afternoon was particularly alert, and he did not miss the glance of apprehension with which Miss Fyne watched the glum man draw near; but, all at once, the glumness vanished, and a smile took its place.

"It's Sefton, isn't it?" exclaimed the no longer glum one. "What brings you to these parts?"

"Hello, Morley," replied Leonard, holding out his hand. "I heard there was a first-class tennis lawn at this hotel, and was drawn as a moth to a candle—and now I find you here, I'm bang in the flame! How's your game? As good as in the Cambridge days?"

"It's—er—pretty fair," responded Morley. "How's yours?"

"A shade on the rusty side, old chap. What about a knock-up after tea? I can see, I'll keep you busy during the next few days. I'm just off to book my room."

"After tea? Yes, I'd—er—like it," murmured Morley, and looked vaguely towards Miss Fyne.

"You know I don't mind," she said. "I want you to go on just as usual."

Morley hesitated, suddenly nodded, called "See you later, then," to Leonard, and went out into the grounds. It had been on the point of giving notice, and going to Scarborough. The place was getting on his nerves. But perhaps, with a little hard tennis, it might be worth while hanging on for a bit. He'd rather like to see what Sefton would make of his new American service.

Miss Fyne turned, and preceded her new guest up the wide, carpeted staircase. Leonard noticed many little touches about the place—pretty pale blue curtains framing the windows, water-colours on the walls, a generous hanging basket of flowers—which, he felt convinced, were not due to Miss Fyne's father; and he paid his tribute to the straight back ahead of him. All women like charming things, but not all women know how to gather them together, and to display them.

Suddenly just as they were reaching Room No. Seven, Miss Fyne asked, over her shoulder, "How did you know the tennis lawn was a first-class one?"

"I guessed it," replied Leonard. "A hotel as good as this couldn't have a bad tennis-lawn."

"You're making up your mind quickly about the hotel," she said, as she inserted the key.

"That's habit of mine," he answered. "I nearly always make up my mind quickly. By the way, do we have to get your permission to use the lawn?"

"What is the arrangement here?"

"My permission? Of course not."

"Good. Only I thought—from Mr. Morley's attitude—that there might be some rule of the sort."

He spoke carelessly, but waited with interest for her reply.

"No—that wasn't his reason," she murmured, and opened the door.

No. Seven was certainly a wonderful room. It had lately been occupied by a rich old gentleman and his neurotic wife, who had left in rather a hurry. There was so much space that the large double bed was hardly noticed as one entered, and one's eye was immediately carried to the wide French windows which opened on to a balcony overlooking the main grounds. The deep blue sea sparkled in the western sun. One side of the wreck, a little to the east of the point, gleamed like a sheet of gold, its grim story gilded temporarily out of the spectator's mind, like the hidden history of an unhappy girl who cheats your knowledge with a smile. Leonard gave a sigh of satisfaction as he advanced into the room. Behind him, the girl's voice made him turn.

"I think I ought to tell you the reason, before you decide," she said.

"It's not necessary, because I've already decided," responded Leonard. "And, besides—I already know the reason."

She looked at him quickly, while he went on, "Good Lord, Miss Fyne, why on earth should people start leaving your hotel because of your misfortune? I agree with your staunch little boots, whom I met on the sands just now. Nice little fellow, that. He's quite angry with your visitors for deserting you, just when you most need 'em to stay."

"Yes, I've got one good friend," answered Miss Fyne, smiling faintly.

"Perhaps you've got two," retorted Leonard, looking at her squarely. "Can you think of any way I can help?"

She turned away for a moment, then swung back again, angry with herself for having been on the point of breaking down.

"You have helped me already," she said. "I'm sure Mr. Morley was about to give notice when he met you and you spoke about tennis."

"Yes, and I'll go on speaking to him about tennis," returned Leonard. "Why should he have given notice? Why should any of them?"

"Well—it's not been very happy here during the past few days. I've done my best to keep cheerful."

"Yes, I can see that!"

"—but it's not been easy, and, of course, everything's changed. It's difficult to be in a holiday mood when policemen and detectives are constantly coming—and then I can't make them understand that I want them to act just as usual when I'm about."

Leonard nodded, sympathetically. "Some of them would be a bit sorry, naturally," he observed, "but what beats me is why so many of them have gone."

"I don't understand that, either," answered Miss Fyne, slowly. "It almost seems—"

"It almost seems—what?" he encouraged her, as she hesitated. "As though there were something else."

"Well, if there is, we'll get to the bottom of it," exclaimed Leonard, briskly. "Look here, Miss Fyne, I'm keeping you from your duties, but can you give me five minutes more and tell me just what happened on the day your father disappeared? A week ago, wasn't it?"

"Yes, August 13th."

"Right. Was he ill or anything? Please let me hear the whole story."

"There isn't much to tell," began Miss Fyne. "No, Father wasn't ill. He was in splendid health. He went through the day as usual and his manner wasn't any different when he said good night to me and went up to his room. At least—no, I don't think it was any different."

"That means you do," commanded Leonard. "In what way might he have been a little different?"

"You're a very good cross-examiner," she smiled, flushing a little. "But one mustn't make the mistake of making things appear important when they really aren't. I mean—that—afterwards—one thinks of all sorts of little points."

Leonard, briskly. "Look here, Miss Fyne, I'm keeping you from your duties, but can you give me five minutes more and tell me just what happened on the day your father disappeared? A week ago, wasn't it?"

"Yes, August 13th."

"Right. Was he ill or anything? Please let me hear the whole story."

"Yes, August 13th."

"Right. Was he ill or anything? Please let me hear the whole story."

"There isn't much to tell," began Miss Fyne. "No, Father wasn't ill. He was in splendid health. He went through the day as usual and his manner wasn't any different when he said good night to me and went up to his room. At least—no, I don't think it was any different."

"That means you do," commanded Leonard. "In what way might he have been a little different?"

"You're a very good cross-examiner," she smiled, flushing a little. "But one mustn't make the mistake of making things appear important when they really aren't. I mean—that—afterwards—one thinks of all sorts of little points."

window. The few remnants of dilapidated furniture were thick with soot, and the old ladies themselves so black with it that they looked like negroes. Years ago, before they retired into seclusion on a small allowance, they were professional women of good breeding who ran a school.

THE TRAGIC SIDE.

In some cases, of course, there is nothing more significant behind the change from multitude to solitude than a deep-seated love of the country which at last is given the opportunity of fulfilment. In others the motive is not so simple. There are people of sensibility who carry on responsible jobs in the great world of affairs for the major part of their lives. They fight, as everyone of the world's workers must fight, giving blows and taking them. They earn to spend, and spend to earn. They are of the striving legion Wordsworth had in mind when he wrote: "The world is too much with us;

late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

One day they wake to the futility of it all—and perhaps the inquiry. They see the tragic side of the battle rather than the thrills. Perhaps they have been hurt by someone they trusted, or become the victims of that underhand practice which is an integral part of the struggle for success

CALL AT MALTA.

JAPANESE LINE INSTITUTES NEW SERVICE

The N.Y.K. Line has tentatively decided to open a service to Malta in the Mediterranean Sea. The S.S. Lyons Maru, which left Kobe on September 1, was the first Japanese boat to call there.

The decision was reached in accordance with the Osaka Chamber of Commerce and Industry's campaign for opening the Malta service, in view of the increased shipments there from Japan.

and survival. The world seems to them too much a place of hard blows, dog eat dog, and boggar-my-neighbour. Ascendancy, they decide, is not worth having at the price; and they quietly, resolutely withdraw.

DEFEATIST PHILOSOPHY?

Some experience of this kind has befallen most of the people I have met who are happy to count the world well lost. They are the sensitive plants in the jungle of predatory weeds. They can fight up to a point, but beyond that point they become philosophers. "Where is the sense in it all?" they ask. "I'd rather live in a cottage and tend my garden."

Judged by the positive dynamic standards of society, it is a defeatist philosophy. But I have noticed that these fugitives from a world that is too much with us enjoy compensations which their unresting fellows lack.

A REVELATION in LOW COST and LOW UPKEEP combined with NEW BEAUTY and POWER.

It took 30 years to build the CONTINENTAL Beacon. 30 years to perfect a motor car that would go 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of petrol—and yet be big and roomy, good to look at and comfortable to ride in, a car you would be proud to own despite its low first cost and its amazing economy of upkeep.

The first thing you will notice about the Beacon is its beauty. Then you will feel the fine riding qualities that come with a powerful 4-cylinder Red Seal engine and Winged Power. But the Beacon's economy of operation won't be realized until you begin to wonder when the first tankful of petrol will exhaust itself!

Come... see the Beacon. You will delight in its appearance and low upkeep. And you will be amazed at its selling price!

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Al Tolson's United Artists Picture, "Hallelujah, I'm a Tramp," the first screen production with "photographic music" running through it, also introduces a number of new song hits. Six numbers, composed by Richard Rodgers, and Larry Hart, are part of the film story which promises a revolutionary method of presenting music on the screen. The titles of the numbers are "Hallelujah, I'm a Tramp," "You Are Too Beautiful," "I Got to Get Back to New York," "What Do You Want With Money?" "Sleeping Beauty" and "Laying the Cornerstone." "Hallelujah, I'm a Tramp," is showing at the King's Theatre to-day.

"Disgraced!"

"Disgraced!" the story of a woman's fight for love with honour, opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. Helen Twelveteens, a beautiful blonde star, is cast in the leading role, with Bruce Cabot, Adrienne Ames, William Hargis and Ken Murray, heading the supporting cast. "Disgraced!" is a fairly modern in its theme. Miss Twelveteens, as an attractive model, fascinates Cabot, a wealthy man-about-town. His ardent wooing finally wins her, even though she knows he is engaged to marry Miss Ames. He promises to break his engagement, and marry her. She believes him. Miss Twelveteens keeps this secret courtship from her father, a police captain, who has warned her against men like Cabot. One day she is called upon to model a wedding gown for Miss Ames, who announces her coming marriage to Cabot. Filled with shame when she realises Cabot has been deceiving her, Miss Twelveteens faces Cabot with a gun. He struggles with her, locks her in a closet and calls the police. Miss Twelveteens' father is assigned to the case. What happens when he learns that the girl is his daughter brings the film to a stirring climax.

"Man About Town"

Two men fight for a woman's heart in "Man About Town," the Fox picture at the Oriental Theatre to-day and Thursday. The woman makes her choice: the men become enemies and one attempts to destroy the other by sending him on a mission so dangerous that death seems a certainty. Fate plays its part and tragedy makes way for a reversal of the ties of friendship until the modern Damon and Pythias unite their efforts to save the woman from scandal, following the mysterious death of an international spy. Warner Baxter portrays the leading role and Karen Morley, who recently won wide acclaim for her performance in "Arsene Lupin" with John and Lionel Barrymore, enacts the leading feminine part. "Man About Town" is described as a thrilling and dramatic romance with unusual features that are said to make it one of the best screen entertainments of the year. Supporting the principal players is a cast that includes such well-known favourites as Conway Tearle, Lillian Bond, Leni Stengel, Allen Mayberry, Lawrence Grant and Halliwell Hobbes.

"Pick Up"

Vina Delmar got Sylvie Sidney into the movies. So when Sylvie and Vina met on the stage of "Pick Up" during the filming of the picture, which has its final showings to-day at the

ATLANTIC CROSSING.

BLUE RIBBON CLAIMED BY EMPERESS LINER

The following is an extract from the New York Journal of Commerce of September 5: While willing to give all credit to the recent speedy passage to New York by the Atlantic liner REX, which claimed the record for crossing the Atlantic, the Canadian Steamships are also laying claim to the Blue Ribband of the Atlantic. According to a statement issued by the Canadian Pacific Steamships, "It is a fine achievement, but 6 hours and 31 minutes short of the record made thirteen months ago by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, which crossed from Cherbourg to Father Point, the Quebec pilotage station, in 4 days, 8 hours and 27 minutes."

Queen's is was quite a reunion indeed. "Pick Up" is the screen version of Miss Delmar's story. Sylvie is featured in it with George Raft.

Though Miss Delmar didn't know that she was bringing Sylvie to screen fame when it happened, Sylvie appeared several years ago, when "Bad Girl" Miss Delmar's first sensational novel, was produced as a play on the Broadway stage. Miss Sidney was cast in the leading role.

B. P. Schulberg, then a Paramount Pictures executive, now the independent producer of "Pick Up" was in the audience one night. He was highly impressed with the acting of little-known Sylvie, so highly impressed, in fact, that he offered her a movie contract. She clicked in films rapidly.

But, mused Sylvie, if Miss Delmar hadn't written "Bad Girl," if it hadn't been done into a play, if... well, she might never have gotten into the movies.

"Pick Up" centres around Sylvie, who, released from prison, is destitute in the city. Picked up by George Raft, a taxi driver, she is soon deeply in love with him, and he with her. They cannot marry, because Sylvie's husband, who got her into prison on "framed" charges, and who himself still remains behind the bars, prevents.

Sylvie at last finds that she can get an annulment of her marriage to her husband without any trouble. But the day the papers come through, the husband appears on the scene, fresh from a prison break in which he has killed a guard, desperately intent on revenge on Sylvie and Raft.

"Moonlight and Pretzels"

You may never have noticed it but lips form words on the screen before the voice comes from the amplifiers behind it.

Take, for example, Leo Carrillo in "Moonlight and Pretzels," the screen musical comedy coming to the King's Theatre on Thursday. If you see the picture you'll be able to catch him in the act, although the difference amounts to only one 1,200,000th of a second!

The reason is this: Light and electricity travel at the same speed, 180,000 miles a second. But on studio stages, where action is recorded by light, and sound by electricity, there's a difference in recording the two. Light is picked up by the camera, only a few feet away from the action and recorded immediately on the film. Sound on the other hand, is picked up immediately by microphones, but travels a quarter of a mile by wire from the mikes to the recording room.

Prominently cast in "Moonlight and Pretzels" besides Carrillo, are

BABY'S SAFEGUARD.

When he is a little older he will ask for what he wants; now he can only grab—and with the instinct of a puppy he grabs for something which he knows is good, Baby's Own Tablets, the children's favourite medicine, so pleasant to take, so easy to give, with no unpleasant after effects.

If baby is peevish, restless, and generally out of sorts, it may mean that he is suffering from worms, those parasites which cause him to lose weight and strength. When you have reason to suspect the presence of worms give the child Baby's Own Tablets, and almost surely you will be pleasantly surprised at the prompt improvement which will follow.

Their efficacy also for the relief of infantile indigestion, constipation, "wind," colds, and feverishness, has made them invaluable to parents. Baby's Own Tablets are the prescription of a doctor, who specialised in children's ailments, and are guaranteed to contain nothing which can be in any way injurious. Their mild laxative action assists nature to dispel any accumulation of waste matter in the food tract, thereby eliminating the cause of many childish ailments.

WAR PHILOSOPHY

The more one thinks about the German Chancellor's broadcast speech in justification of Germany's secession from the League, the more one becomes amazed at his habit of rushing his fancies. In most respects it was reasonable and restrained.

It was the speech of a man arguing a case with intelligence and moderation, and, but for the cause which inspired it, would have made an excellent impression, would have proved even more valuable than his famous

Reichstag speech in improving

Germany's position in the court of world opinion. But it ignored the realities. If Herr Hitler seeks a peaceable working-out of Germany's problems, as the speech implied, the biggest obstacle in his path is one that his own followers have put there.

Militarism is taught in Nazi school as an ideal, war itself is glorified as good in itself, as essential to the "purification" of the nation. The dying warrior must gladly shed his blood as inlibation to his National God.

Such a doctrine, officially approved, could not help but re-arouse all of the fears and dis-trusts of pre-war days. The most persuasively worded appeal for world understanding could not overcome the conviction of peril induced by what appears to be a mass effort to break down every pacifist tendency within the Reich. Herr Hitler cannot blame foreign opinion if it fears that the object of his policies is to gain time and to duel criticism abroad while he pushes on his preparations for the German military renaissance.

Neither can he complain if those subject to such fears immediately interpret as complete confirmation, withdrawal from the League when it is made plain that the alarm has given rise to a caution which insists that Germany cannot have all she wants all at once. German logic should be able to follow the mental processes which have produced the present situation of deadlock. The Nazi creed may be good for Germany; it must appear as a menace to the rest of the world. So long as the National Socialist revolution concerns only the people within the borders of the Reich, no interference can be warranted. As soon as it steps outside, it becomes an issue of first-rank importance to every nation. As pointed out by The Times, the moral disarmament of Germany is the factor that will outweigh all other problems in seeking a solution of the crisis. If Herr Hitler is sincere in his wish for an era of peace, he must give his words the logic of action. Germany can give full rein to its love of discipline and its public spiritedness without preaching as did Captain von Papen, that this means endorsement of a national philosophy of preparedness for the sacrifices of war.

NOTES OF THE DAY

AUSTRIAN PLOT

The timely discovery of the Nazi plot to seize the Linz garrison is a reminder that Dr. Dollfuss's most difficult problems are still ahead of him. The Hitlerite Fascists are not to be expected to surrender their pet ambition of union with the Reich without a bitter struggle, while the hostility of the Socialists, aroused keenly by the Chancellor's rigorous suppressive measures, lends further instability to his position. Time, however, is on his side. The Heimwehr have now gone into his camp unreservedly, and Prince von Starhemberg, their leader, professes to complete allegiance to the spirit of the Fatherland Front, Dr. Dollfuss's nationalistic organization. As soon as the combined forces are completely welded, the Chancellor will have Austria in an iron grip. The joke is on Herr Hitler. The new Austria will be of definitely Italian leanings and definitely anti-German—the direct result of tactical blunders by Hitler's over-keen supporters.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Almost every aspect of unemployment has been closely studied in the last few weeks by Ministry of Labour experts engaged in drafting the new Unemployment Insurance Bill. The secrets of the projected legislation have been well kept, but it will undoubtedly be the most important Bill to be submitted to Parliament during the next session. Occupational training institutions are to be established, designed both to teach crafts to youthful unemployed and to keep them fit, while the scope of insurance will be greatly extended so as to embrace nearly every class of worker. The principal object, as far as can be gathered, is to place unemployment insurance on a permanently solvent basis for a generation, and for that purpose, a special commission responsible to the Ministry of Labour will probably be appointed to take full charge of the responsibilities of administration. The aim is to dispose of this issue once and for all. Whether success will reward the effort depends very much upon whether the Means Test is preserved or abolished. There will be no support from those most affected while that remains on the Statute Book.

A PARKING PROBLEM

Commander Cowland, of the Royal Naval Yard, must have been one of the most surprised men in Hongkong yesterday morning. He had parked his car in a "No Parking" area for an hour and fifty minutes on his own admission. The police officer concerned thought it was nearer two hours. The worthy magistrate dismissed the summons because of a certain "vagueness" about the time of the arrival of the car. Did the Commander smile?

RADIATOR CAPS

Talking of cars, the safety of the poor pedestrian would seem to suggest the need for a regulation dealing with radiator caps. One particular make of car on sale today is provided with a cap from which a sharp spike projects forwards for nearly six inches. It adds a needless peril to the ordinary dangers of the road. A slight accident might easily be converted into a tragedy. A radiator cap of this type should be totally prohibited.

AMERICA'S POSITION

Yesterday's announcement shows clearly that in the not-distant future America must make up her mind just how far she will go in helping to maintain the peace of Europe. That peace is a very unstable thing. It has been, ever since the war. It was unstable for decades before the war. There is nothing in sight to indicate that it is going to be any more stable in the immediate future. This is because there has not, for many decades, been a situation in Europe which was not deeply displeasing to certain important minorities. Before 1914, France wanted to regain her lost provinces, Polish patriots dreamed of independence, restless groups in the Hapsburg empire schemed for separation; since the war the central powers, particularly Germany, have felt the Versailles treaty as an irksome restriction which must some day be ended. If America stands aloof the disarmament programme must collapse. A new war will become more than likely, and U.S.A. will have no assurance whatever that she will be any more able to keep out of it than of the last one.

HERMITS I HAVE MET

By TREVOR ALLEN

THEY are an interesting minority—the people who count the world well lost. I have met many in the course of my wanderings and have always wondered what sudden change came into their lives, what psychological twist, that they should turn their backs on the teeming life of city and society and seek recompense in solitude.

One of them is a still young, attractive woman who, two years ago, was a well-known dancer. She had travelled England and the Continent for years amid all the excitements and glimmers of stage life, knowing the thrill of applause from crowded "houses," the worship of admirers who sent her costly bouquets and pleaded to be allowed to take her out to dine or sup at fashionable—expensive resorts.

TIRED OF LONDON.

She danced her way from Scandinavia to the Riviera, enjoying life unreservedly, taking avidly whatever it brought her in professional popularity and romantic friendships. She was the ballerina—and a clever and charming one at that—who seemed fated to live in a perpetual whirl of people, theatres and parties.

One day, while performing, her partner made a mis-step and threw her rather heavily. She was not seriously injured, but had to relinquish her dancing for a time. She became preoccupied with the usual round of London social life as it is lived by most artists who have talents, good looks and hosts of friends.

Then it happened that she had to visit friends by the sea, and found herself on the shore of a wide estuary of the East Coast, looking across to a lonely stretch of country apparently devoid of habitation, except for an occasional farmhouse or cottage. She said to herself, with sudden conviction: "I have had enough of London. I am going to live there!"

She had to make a detour inland of about thirty miles to reach the place, but eventually found a farmer on that lonely coast who was willing to lease her a small piece of land by the seawall.

DRAMA OF A LONELY SHORE.

She installed a hut, and then bought a small houseboat and settled there in a solitude which would have haunted most women inured to city life, especially the life of the fated ballerina.

It was not merely a midsummer day's dream. She lived alone right through the winter of mists and gales, and the only people she saw for days, apart from the farmer and his family, were occasional fishermen far out over the mud flats at low tide.

One night, in the most terrific storm of mid-winter, she awoke in the dark to find the boat tossing and storm-racked, and stepped out of her bunk into two feet of water. She knew instinctively what had happened. The boat had slipped its moorings and was apparently drifting out to sea on the windlashed tide.

It was black dark outside; the wind was roaring, the rain slashing down, and the boat had a bad list. "Well, I suppose this is the end," she reflected.

She groped in the dark, found matches and cigarettes by sheer luck, and, perched as high as possible, smoked and waited for dawn, or whatever might befall her before it came. When, after what seemed an eternity, dawn glimmered over the sea, she found she had drifted on to the marsh; a mud bank had providentially saved her from being carried right out to sea.

That experience might have daunted any woman. All she did was to get the boat moored up again more securely and carry on. By the end of the winter she had read all her books at least three times.

But she was happy. She can say to-day, in all sincerity, "I never lived until I came here. I have never been so happy in my life."

She counted the world well lost. By forgoing pleasures she had found happiness, and happiness of a deep, abiding kind. She hardly ever thought of London; her triumphal tour of the Continent had become a far-off dream; the peace and beauty of that lonely shore were now part of her.

In a quiet lane skirting the hills above the beautiful Wye one evening I encountered a youngish man working at a landscape canvas propped on an old stone wall. He was dressed in rough tweeds; happiness and serenity were reflected in his eyes.

"Who is that fellow?" I asked my host, who was walking with me.

"Oh, he is the son of a man with a title," was the reply. "Some years ago he led a big scientific expedition up the Amazon. He was engaged in quite a lot of things of that kind, then he came down here on a visit, and stayed. He lives in a cottage quite alone, and is always painting. He's a quiet fellow—seldom talks to anyone."

He, too, appeared to count the world well lost.

Nearby, in the heart of a wood on a steep hillside accessible only by rough paths, lives an elderly woman belonging to a rich family which gives its name to a product that is a by-word in every home. She dresses in all old coat and man's breeches and shares her shack with fowls and—if I remember—a goat or two.

She is a woman of education and breeding, yet she prefers to live the life of a hermit in an isolated spot where no one intrudes. In winter the only paths become minor torrents. My host and I tried for an hour to find the place, but became lost in a tangled wilderness.

Sometimes the roses of solitude turn into strangling weeds. I shall not forget visiting a gaunt house on a western hilltop which had been occupied by two very old ladies—sisters—who for years had lived as recluses. A neighbour who was called in one day found one of them dead in a chair and the other, half-demented, crooning over her: "Wake her up! I can't get her to wake up!"

They had existed in one upper room of indescribable squalor, sharing even that with a flock of fowls and several mangy cats. The floor was covered inches deep with filth; the chimney had become blocked; the only outlet for the smoke from the fire was the

The Very Idea!

THIS BRIDGE VICE

By Eddie Kelly No-vice

EVER since last week, when we took our first bridge lesson, we have felt that at last we are breaking into Hongkong society.

We got a bit boxed up about the conventions for a start, but fortunately in the game we play in everyone is unconventional.

We take off our collars and ties, litter up the table with half a dozen bottles of beer and get to work.

In case any of our readers would like to learn bridge, we are going to give you a glossary of the terms used.

We have purposely left out several of the terms used by our partner, as we don't think they would look nice in this column.

BRIDGE is played by four people. There are several important bridges in the world, including London Bridge, Manhattan Bridge and Sydney Harbour bridge.

CLUB—Badge of office worn by dummy or any bystander. It should be used whenever a revoke is noticed or when your partner goes down six doubled.

DOUBLE is two of anything, e.g., double whiskey, two whistles etc. "Seeing Double" is mistaking the deuce for the Ace.

DEAL—Piece of wood, "Square Deal", the card table. See "Plain Dealer".

CULBERTSON—Sissy name, similar to Cuthbert. In bridge it means a hand containing four Queens.

ELY—Famous Cathedral in England. Bridge is said to have originated there when Alfred the Great wanted to cross a river.

LEAD—Heavy metal, used for weighing end of club. (q. v.)

PASS—Invitation to the player nearest to the bottle of whiskey.

SUIT—What is worn at a card table. LONG SUIT—Pyjamas.

SHORT SUIT—Underpants.

POST MORTEM—Inquest on victim of a "Slam" in clubs.

SLAM—Bat on the head with a club (q. v.)

BID—Short for Bridget. Sometimes also shortened to Bridgo.

HONOURS—Mistake. There is no honour in Bridge.

TRUMP—Bugle blown aboard ship, and in the Army and Navy, to signify that it's time to quit.

CENT A POINT—Vicious system used in bridge to pry money out of anybody who holds poor cards. Anyone who plays this kind of bridge had no cents.

MRS.

NEXT YEAR PLANNED"I SHALL TRY

TO TAKE UP
SWIMMINGMOVIE OFFER
REJECTEDSan Francisco,
Oct. 17.

Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, the world's champion woman tennis player, announced to-day that she will return to competitive tennis.

Out again after receiving hospital treatment for an injury to her back which caused her to remain out of the Wightman Cup team this year and also to forfeit the American singles championship to Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Moody has expressed not only a craving to get back to the tennis courts, but perfect contentment in her present mode of living.

To this end she has rejected an offer to make a film.

"GET SO TIRED"

Interviewed by Reuter, the lady champion said:

"I shall play tennis again. I shall play in tournaments and I shall try to win."

"It is good to walk again, even if I can only go a few blocks at a time. The farthest I have gone so far is six blocks."

"I suppose it will take a long time to get back to championship form," reflected Mrs. Moody, then added, "but I am going to play next year."

Referring to her more immediate form of exercise, Mrs. Moody said "I shall take up swimming first, as this is the only exercise I can have now, and because it keeps me off my feet. I get so tired standing."

Helen indicated that she had not received any offers to turn professional, and that she had rejected a movie offer "because I am content to live as I do now."—Reuter.

THRILLING HOCKEY.

Radio And Lincolns Draw
At Shamshuipo.

TOYNE OUTSTANDING.

Spectators were rewarded with an exciting friendly hockey match on the Shamshuipo Camp ground yesterday afternoon, when the Lincolnshire Regiment played a drawn game with the Radio Sports Club, each side netting one goal. The Lincolnshire played without the services of at least five of their regular men, Lt. Hocquard, who is on the football injured list, Lt. Roisler, Trost, Hockford and Shabale, while the Radio made one change in their team, Karnall Singh coming in at right wing in place of Prem Singh.

Some brilliant exchanges featured the game, and within the first fifteen minutes of play, Avtar Singh gave the visitors the lead. Shortly after the resumption, Toyné equalised. Toyné, who is the Lincolnshire regular right wing, played a hard game and was a constant source of worry to P. Singh, the Radio right back, who, however, was steady. Both teams strove hard to gain victory in the closing stages of play. Avtar Singh, having had luck in not finding the net when Hollingsworth lay on the ground. The soldiers' forward line combined well, Toyné sending in some accurate passes.

Lincolns: Hollingsworth; Bentley, Wilkinson; Yeomans, Harper, Lieut. Catter; Harrison, Morrell, Gutteridge, Lieut. Wilson, Toyné.
Radio: Man Singh; P. Singh, Mohinder Singh, Jagdeep Singh, M. H. Hassan, J. S. Grewal; Kurrall Singh, G. Singh, Awtar Singh, Kalwant Singh, E. A. Kemp. (Captain). Reserve: Attar Singh.

"Y" LADIES WIN.

Playing their first friendly match of the season on the Marina ground yesterday afternoon, the St. Andrew's Club ladies were defeated by the Y.M.C.A. ladies by a goal to nil. Miss O. Brown was responsible for the point.

POLICE MAKAM WIN.

The Police commenced their Makam Hockey Tournament fixtures this season in promising manner when they defeated the 12th Battery, R.A., by five goals to one at Lyceum yesterday afternoon. Outstanding for the winners were Perkins and Gough, who each scored two goals, while the fifth was netted by Indian Constable 305.

WILLS-MOODY'S "COME-BACK"

MRS. HELEN WILLS-MOODY.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD ON OCTOBER 28TO RING DOWN CURTAIN ON THE 1933 BOWLS SEASON.

The curtain will be rung down on the very successful lawn bowls season of 1933 on Saturday October 28, when the Aitkenhead Shield match, between 12 Hongkong and Kowloon rinks will be played.

This was decided at a meeting of the general committee of the Lawn Bowls Association held yesterday.

Mr. J. Russell, President of the Association was in the chair and prior to discussing the Aitkenhead Shield contest he made reference to the Interport matches. He said he felt pleased that Hongkong had won and retained the Fredrick Cup. He was very thankful to all those who had assisted in making the stay of the Shanghai players such a pleasant and enjoyable one.

The chairman later expressed the thanks of the Association to Mr. H. Hampton, the Hon. Secretary, for all the work he had done in connection with the series. There had been a tremendous amount of work in getting the programmes arranged as well as in other directions. Others were also deserving of thanks for their work during the visit of the Shanghai players.

Mr. Russell apologised to the Indian R. C. for the Association's inability to provide them with a match against Shanghai. If it had been at all possible the Indian R. C. would have been given a game but it was thought that, being a young club, preference should be given to the more senior. He also apologised to the Club de Hockey for the unavoidable cancellation of their game owing to rain interfering with the match against Victoria.

On the motion of the chairman it was agreed that the Association should purchase 24 spoons and that six be given to the Shanghai players who were in Hongkong for the Interports.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD.

It was decided that the Aitkenhead Shield contest be played at the Valley on the greens of the Craigengower C. C. on Saturday October 28, at 2.30 p.m., and that each side provide twelve rinks.

The Talloo R.C., the Craigengower C.C. and the Police R.C. are each to provide eight players, the Hongkong Electric and the Yacht Club six each, and the Indian R. C. four; while each of the four Kowloon Clubs is to submit the names of twelve players.

After each club has submitted names to the Hon. Secretary a sub-committee will select the various rinks. Messrs. J. Russell, U. M. Omar, A. W. Grimmit and L. de Rome were appointed the selection committee for Hongkong, and Messrs. H. Hampton, R. P. Phillips, B. Wylie, and J. Kempton for Kowloon.

Each of the players participating will be charged $1 to defray the cost of souvenir spoons for the winners. A collection will be made during the match on behalf of St. Dunstan's Home.

INDIAN R.C. HOPES.

Before the meeting closed a representative of the Indian R.C. assured the Association that being a young club, they did not expect to be given a match against Shanghai but they hoped that they would be considered in future.

The chairman replied that he hoped the Indian R.C. would attain the standard that would make it impossible for the Association to neglect them in any Interport competition.

Mention was made by the chairman of the invitation sent by the English Lawn Bowls Association to Hongkong to enter seven players for the Empire Games next year. The chairman remarked that it had been mentioned in one local paper that seven names had already been submitted, but this was incorrect.

It was decided to leave the matter in abeyance until the return of some of the players who were in England during the past year.

SEVEN INTERPORTERS
IN SPEY ROYAL
CUP FINAL

RINKS CHOSEN

No less than seven Interporters will be included in the Kowloon Dock and Craigengower rink which meet in the final of the Spey Royal Cup on Saturday next.

The match is to be staged on the Civil Service green, and the match should provide one of the best contests of the year.

The rink will be as follows:

G. I. Buchanan J. V. Ramsey
B. W. Bradbury W. Greig
H. Beer J. C. Brown
U. M. Omar (skip) R. Lapsley (skip)

C. Richards, the Shanghai Interport bowler, who stayed over after the team departed for the North, is being given a roll up this afternoon by members of the Craigengower C.C. and advantage is being taken for the Spey Cup rink to have a practice before the final on Saturday.

Richards will skip a quartette to oppose the Craigengower four, and it is expected that quite a strong rink will be played.

ARMY TENNIS FINAL.

Private Ronan Wins The Singles Title.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED.

Playing against a somewhat listless opponent, Pte. J. Ronan, (South Wales Borderers), easily defeated Sgt. C. Halford (S. W. Borderers) in straight sets, in the final of the Army Other Ranks Singles Tennis Competition at Sookunpoo yesterday, winning 6-1, 6-5.

At the conclusion of the match, the presentation of prizes by the President of the Army Club, Capt. P. S. Cannon, A.A.C., took place, to the doubles and singles champions and runners-up. Before making the presentations, Capt. Cannon briefly thanked the officials of the Club and the competitors for the spirit in which they had entered.

INTERPORT PLAYERS IN FORMCRICKET TRIAL IN SHANGHAI

STRONG BATTING

The Shanghai cricket team which, it is anticipated will come down to Hongkong for the forthcoming interport justified their selection when they defeated another picked side by 78 runs.

The winners were the first to bat, knocking up 199 for the loss of 9 wickets, and on putting their opponents in, they were able to dismiss them for 121 runs. As there was still time for play after the innings had been concluded, a further short knock was given the interport batsmen and they continued on until the light failed.

The batting strength of the winners was revealed as practically every man in the team knocked up a creditable total. L. F. Stokes as opening bat scored 48, while the next highest return was Sinclair's 34. Leach and Madar each got 24. On the other team, P. E. T. Marshall celebrated his return to local cricket by knocking up 40 in excellent style, including in his total a couple of sixes that landed well out of the grounds. T. I. T. Begg scored 23 and the remainder of the team failed to withstand the bowling.

Willie Smith And His Tour of The East

No man ever had a more pleasingly enthusiastic reception among the sports people of the East than had I on my first tour four years ago, writes Willie Smith, who will shortly be making his second trip East of Suez.

If I except the now historic case of my trousers being stolen, everything on that tour made up to one long succession of enjoyable days and nights among the hospitable sports lovers in the East. I believe, too, that the tour was instructive for those people who watched my game. My mail for some months afterwards (and still to-day if in lesser volume) was heavy with correspondence from the East, expressive of the pleasure that billiards enthusiasts had derived from watching the games.

It is with the hope of renewing many desirable acquaintances that my coming tour, organized by Burroughes and Watts, is planned, and with the additional hope that I shall be enabled to help still further to enjoy billiards those who are attracted to the game.

DRIVE FOR FRESH PLAYERS.

Another ambition of mine is that this tour will bring into the game fresh players to whom as yet it is only a name.

This billiards game is so easy to enjoy; it is so full of simple, recreations; pleasure that one feels it ought to be brought to the ken of more and more people. That has been a big part of my job in recent years, bringing the fascination of billiards to the notice of more and more people. I reckon that there are 2,000,000 people in Great Britain playing billiards solely for the enjoyment they get out of it. In America it is said there are 8,000,000 players. Surely billiards has more adherents than has any game under the sun. And all those people cannot be

Nanking, Oct. 17.
The twenty-year-old Chinese, Hsu Cheng-chi, from Batavia, was crowned China's new tennis champion to-day, when he beat Shanghai's No. 1 singles player, Khoo Hooi-hye, by 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.—Reuter.

SWIMMING RESULTS.

Nanking, Oct. 16.
Swimming results to-day were:
1,500 Metres Free Style: First Heat, 1. Sze Hing-chie (Lüning) 2. Kwok Chen-hang (Hongkong) 3. Shek Kam-pui (Kwangtung); Time: 23 min. 12.2 secs. (A national record). Second Heat, 1. Wang Hung-lung (Fukien), 2. Chan Fook-sing (Kwangtung), 3. Wong Sun-man (Hongkong); Time: 20 min. 54.5 secs. Third Heat, 1. Sze Hing-lung (Lüning) 2. Sun Hsi-wei (Tungting) 3. Lo Kat-sing (Kwangtung); Time: 27 min. 10.8 seconds.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

SHOOTING INCIDENT.

Nanking, Oct. 16.
In connexion with the shooting incident yesterday, the competitors arrived at the conclusion that unless proper action be taken to punish the soldiers, they would have no other alternative but to withdraw from further competitions.

It was a shame, they maintained, that such a monstrous incident should have happened in Nanking, the seat of the National Government. The authorities have been telegraphed Marshal Chiang Kai-shek to ask for his advice in the matter.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Hongkong fell before Shanghai in the volleyball, losing by three to one, and Canton defeated Chekiang three-nil. Canton thus enters the final against Shanghai. The game will be played to-morrow.
Hoped eliminated Hongkong's baseball team, scoring four runs to their opponents' three. Hoped meets Canton in the final to-morrow.
In the indoor baseball, Canton beat Nanking 14 to 6, and plays Shanghai to-morrow in the final.—Reuter.

FOOTBALL FORECASTS BY "ROBIN" AND "PILGRIM"

PUNTERS FAVOURED BY PROGRAMME

EVERTON MEET THE 'SPURS'

CHELSEA RELYING ON PRIESTLEY

THE SCOTTISH LEAGUE

(By "The Pilgrim")

For those, who, in addition to their ordinary interest in Home football, like to support their fancies with a little flutter, the programme this week is rather kind, and winners should not be over-difficult to select.

Arsenal and Blackburn should have a good day at home unless Priestley justifies his reputation to Chelsea's benefit. Leicester will meet the Highbury team in good form I think unless their present recovery is a mere flash. The best spectacle of the day will be provided by Everton's home meeting with Tottenham. I think the defence of the visitors will balance the thrust of the Liverpool men's attack. Goals should be fairly plentiful.

Stoke City will test Bromwich Albion severely but I don't think they will overcome the more polished home team.

STARTLING COLLAPSE. Bolton Wanderers pay a visit to Hull where they may be expected to take both points, whilst Preston North End have a chance of redemption in their engagement with Bristol City, although I fancy the City's chances in view of their last performances.

Lincoln have suffered a startling collapse. Formerly they were noted for their consistency but their recent form suggests that Plymouth will have a day's outing. Bolton should have little difficulty in relieving Fulham of two points whilst Port Vale should strengthen their challenge to the leaders with a similar success against Bradford.

THIRD DIVISION. In the Southern Section Exeter meet Norwich who only need a brace to draw level with them at the top, but Crystal Palace have great prospects of topping both clubs when they entertain Cardiff. The Welshmen are going great Moss, the Arsenal goalkeeper, saving desperately against Hunt, the Tottenham centre-forward (Planet News).

ALL THE PLAY BUT LOSE

DEFEATED BY SHANGHAI

Nanking, Oct. 17. Shanghai's football contingent to the National Games today disposed of the powerful Hongkong eleven by scoring the only goal of the match. Before the game had been in progress more than a minute Shanghai was awarded a free kick and Feng Yun-yu put the ball into beautiful position in front of the Hongkong goal. Li Yi-chen headed into the net. Hongkong did most of the attacking throughout the game and only spectacular play on the part of the Shanghai goal-keeper, Chow Hsi-tien-yen, and his full backs, saved the day for the northerners. The Shanghai forwards were slow and rarely dangerous.

In the other semi-final game, Canton retrieved the fortunes of the south, defeating Hanoi by 4 to 1. Canton now meets Shanghai for the title to-morrow.

guns just now and the Londoners will have a stiff struggle. I expect Chesterfield to go further ahead at New Brighton's expense but Tranmere should stick the pace with a win at Rotherham. The Walsall-Barnsley fixture will be worth seeing and the Arsenal debacle may be repeated here in a milder form.

Scottish football presents some easy pickings, notably Dundee and Motherwell—as home winners. Queen of South may disappoint the Aberdeen crowd by securing at least one point.

TO BEAT THE BOOK

By "Robin"

HOME. Blackburn, West Bromwich, Port Vale, Southampton, Luton, Swindon, Barrow, Ayr, New Brighton, Arsenal, Blackpool, Norwich.

AWAY. Reading, Exeter, Chesterfield.

DRAWN. Birmingham, Bury, Lincoln.

Another fine action study of Moss, the Arsenal custodian, as he cleared a dangerous corner with a Spurs forward in attendance (Planet News).

CLUBHOUSE CHATTER BY "THE PILGRIM"

THE THIRD BACK GAME: PORTSMOUTH PLAYER'S LOSS: SPURS FIRST HOME DEFEAT SINCE 1931

TOM Parker, the old Arsenal back, who is now manager of Norwich City, has decided to persist in his recent introduction of the three-back game.

THAT he should have taken the third back plunge will not occasion much surprise in view of his Arsenal experience, and it is quite obvious that he has not forgotten, in a Soccer sense, his old spiritual home.

IN the fullness of time it may be that Herbert Chapman will find it necessary to take his own team to Norwich by air and show "pupil Tom" has responded to the avuncular schoolmaster at Highbury.

FOOTBALL at its best was seen at Highbury when Arsenal and Glasgow Rangers, Football League and Scottish League champions respectively, met in the return game.

THE result—Rangers won comfortably for the second time—matter of little for the exchanges were such as to delight beyond measure a crowd officially estimated at 35,000.

THE Arsenal not only lost the match but paid for the dinner given to the Rangers last evening and returned a compliment of last week by presenting souvenirs to their opponents, so that Scotland had a very good day.

RILEY has delighted White Hart Lane with his play. Against Liverpool he gave a fine exhibition, and won general admiration.

IT was learned after the Sheffield United-Portsmouth match recently that the Portsmouth secretary, Jack Timm, had received a wire announcing the death of Sepimus Rutherford's father, and asking him to withhold the sad news until the end of the match.

RUTHERFORD, the bereaved son, to whom general sympathy will be extended, played a prominent part in an unchanged team, and he it was who scored the only goal of the game to put his side at the head of the League.

WHEN victory over Southampton gave Millwall the honour of being the first team to win at the Dell this season, Ransome's hat-trick did the damage. Quick into his stride and accurate with his shooting, Ransome was very near the ideal centre-forward.

OF the football League side chosen to meet the Irish League at Preston only Crooks, Bastin and Brock had been previously honoured in this type of game.

PRESTON North End began as a Sunday School side. The famous "Spurs" were once a club of youths who had difficulty in finding a bit of waste ground on which to have their weekly kick-about.

THEY used to have a whip round now and then to meet their minute expenses. Their directors now have to account to their shareholders for thousands of pounds every year.

FOOTBALL, which was once a pastime, has climbed into the big business class.

HOTSPURS home defeat by Liverpool was the first since Christmas Day of 1931.

FROM a Home "Daily"—"Blooming" awaits in hospital an operation for cartilage. Graham's knee improves. Turnbull finds a leg and Hookings an ankle. Pipe stood in recent test, well and Yull may be fit by the weekend. Goodnight nurse!

IT is the force generated by the back and the shoulders which produces the length.

I do not think the hands and arms play a very active part. They are used mainly for guiding the ball and keeping it under control.

It has been said that Weaver gets his length by means of a jerk, but I think this is a mistake. Rather does he carry out the movement smoothly and rhythmically and by accurately timing the exact moment when the back muscles begin to be exerted.

All players may not be able to attain Weaver's length. With the aid of the wind he has thrown so far as the far post. But I am convinced that all throws can be lengthened if the correct methods are adopted, and if it is understood that length does not come through the arms.

To ensure as far as the penalty area the trajectory of the ball must be higher than usual. This is another important thing to remember, and practice.

5 MINUTES FOOTBALL

THE THROW IN

HOW TO GET THE BEST RESULTS

(By "Saracen")

When Weaver, the Newcastle United wing half-back, started every one by his long throws from the side line nothing was more certain than that he would have many imitators. To-day most half-backs have lengthened their throws very considerably.

Some in fact have come near to equalling Weaver's prodigious feats. A throw which lands the ball in the penalty area and from the bounce reaches the middle of goal is not only spectacular but highly dangerous especially if it has the element of surprise. It may come but up to now it has brought no effective counter and it has brought no disorganization, and with the possibility that it may be scrambled into the net.

I think the tall player has an advantage in the long throw because the greater the height from which the ball can be flung the greater the leverage. It is not so much a movement with the arms as with the whole body and to get the right swing the feet should not be placed too close. As a matter of fact Weaver, as well as those who have copied his success, fully, takes a stride up to the line to deliver the ball, but at the moment he lets it go both feet are on the ground. This, of course, is essential otherwise the throw would be a foul.

HOW IT IS DONE. As the ball is taken up over the head the back is bent backwards. There is then an almost imperceptible pause as at the top of the golf swing. When the return movement begins the weight of the shoulders comes in to act as a sort of lever and

“SHADOWS BY THE SEA”

You know. It's dangerous to dwell on them, isn't it?”

“Not sure that I agree,” he replied. “It rather depends upon what the points are, and how one dwells on them. What did you notice about your father, anyway?”

“He seemed a little distrustful. For the first time in his life—this sounds silly—he forgot to kiss me good-night, and I had to remind him.”

“Why, then his manner was different!” declared Leonard, re-mindingly. “I shall have to investigate a greater accuracy. Miss Fyne, if I am going to help you well—and after he went to his room?”

“That is what I can't tell you,” he answered gravely, after a short silence. “I never saw him terwards. Next morning, early, his boat was washed ashore. It's small boat belonging to the hotel. We went to his room. He wasn't there. He'd not been to bed. And that's all!”

Looking at the girl, Leonard realized that tragic morning, and he realized the agony she had passed through all the more because she did not now dwell upon it. Doubtless, in that cold, grey out, she had shown the same fervour that she had shown since, at that did not lessen the emotion that must have shaken her, or reduce her helplessness or lone-ness. He waited for a few moments, for Miss Fyne had turned away again. Then he said, very gently.

“We won't talk about this any more now, Miss Fyne. Perhaps, later, we can return to it. But there's just one question I'd like to ask. Is anyone here to help you? I mean, relatives or friends, you know?”

“No one,” she answered.
“Father and I only had each other.”

And now an impulse, formerly repressed, asserted itself again, and he gave way to it.

“You asked me how long I wanted this room for,” he said.

As I had to reduce some seven or eight pounds off my normal bodyweight in order to enable me to compete in the 9-stone class, I had to go into very strenuous training, and with the help of Phosferine, I not only won the championship of that class, but also the individual Championship, and, in addition I broke a British Record.
I therefore have no hesitation in recommending Phosferine to any physical culturist or athlete, whether he be in ordinary training or preparing for a competition, as it

CONTRACT
BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Some day I hope to see the premium for honours abolished in contract.

In the first place, it seems unjust that you should deal a player all the cards in the deck—enough to allow him to make a small or a grand slam against you—and then, in addition to the slam bonus, the trick count and the game bonus, give him 100 to 150 points for holding all of those good cards.

But even worse than that is the fact that the average beginner, when holding honours, allows it to influence his bidding. How often have you seen the beginner, when holding 150 aces, insist that the hand be played at no trump?

Take for example, the following hand which was played in a club duplicate game. Out of the 11 tables playing, only three pairs obtained a plus score. The others played the hand at either seven hearts or seven no trump, and of course neither can be made.

The Bidding

The proper bidding is as follows: South and West pass and North bids one no trump. South bids two diamonds. While he can make a one over one spade bid, it is better for him to bid the diamonds so that he can show the distribution to his partner.

Over two diamonds North should bid three hearts. South will now bid three spades. North, with his 150 aces, can now bid four no trump, inviting a slam.

South should then bid five spades—re-bidding the spades at this point definitely shows a six-card diamond suit and a five-card spade suit. The diamonds were bid first showing that they were longer than the spades, and the spades have been bid and rebid showing the suit to be a five-carder. North, with his strong hand, is now justified in bidding seven spades.

The Play

With the king of clubs opening by West, the declarer wins with the ace in dummy, discarding a heart from his own hand. The ace of diamonds is cashed and then a club is ruffed in declarer's hand. The last losing club in dummy is discarded on the king of diamonds.

Then the jack of hearts is won with dummy's ace, and a small heart is ruffed with the jack of spades. The eight of spades is played and overtaken with the nine.

Another small heart is ruffed with the queen of spades. The king of spades is led and overtaken by the ace, and the hand is solid.

SEAMEN'S RACE.

C.P.R. Liner's Boat
Wins Event.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Ideal conditions favoured the 20th bi-annual race for the Trevesa Trophy yesterday afternoon, when six ship's life boats faced the starter at Channel Rocks. The first boat to complete the four mile course was the Empress of Asia (C.P.R.), and the Empress of Asia was awarded second place. Three boats were disqualified for failing to keep to the regulations of the course, and one failed to finish. The race was watched by Commodore Elliott, Royal Navy, Mr. A. L. Shields, Commodore of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, Mr. H. S. Rouse, Vice-Commodore, Mr. R. J. Vernal and Mr. M. I. Deville, joint secretaries. Captain D. Skinner, of the Empress of Asia, Captain A. R. Jardine, Matheson, Captain A. R. McEachran, China Navigation Company, Mrs. Skinner, Mrs. McEachran and several others from launches. The sea was calm and a fresh southerly wind was blowing when the six boats got off to one of the finest starts seen in this series of races. The Empress of Asia took the lead with the other boats struggling behind. At Kowloon Rock, the first mark, it was over thirty yards ahead of the others, and by the time it reached the mark off the Yacht Club it held such a commanding lead that there appeared to be no chance of overtaking it. The two boats from the s.s. Hwang-yuan, followed by the Tai-yuan, Kwangchow and the Kaying. By the time Cuiat Rock was reached the Kaying boat had given up the race, but the Tai-yuan was seen to make a determined effort to catch up the two Hwang-yuan boats, which were about thirty yards ahead. Rowing steadily it decreased the lead, and eventually overtook one, but the other got home before her, only to be disqualified for not taking the correct course. The Hwang-yuan boat under Mr. R. Lane fouled the mark off the Yacht Club when taking the turn, and was disqualified.

The time taken by the winning boat was 58 minutes 20 seconds. The times of the other boats were not clocked owing to a misunderstanding as to the finishing mark.

The boats entered were from the Empress of Asia, two from the s.s. Hwang-yuan, Mr. R. Lane and Mr. Balleo, one from the s.s. Kaying under Mr. Winterbottom, one from the s.s. Tai-yuan under Mr. Hindle and one from the s.s. Kwangchow under Mr. Mitchell. The Kaying, Tai-yuan and Kwangchow belong to Butterfield and Swire, and the Hwang-yuan boats to Jardine, Matheson.

A SPLENDID WIN. Addressing the gathering at the presentation, Commodore Frank Elliott said he wished to congratulate Mr. Morrell, the 5th. officer of the Empress of Asia, and the helmsman of the winning boat. He and his merry men had pulled splendidly round the four mile course in their heavy boat, and his seamanship was very good. The second boat was the s.s. Tai-yuan. The third and fourth had been disqualified as the third had rowed six oars and the fourth had fouled a mark. It was the first time that the Canadian Pacific Line had won the race, which previously had been won five times by the Douglas Company; seven by the J.C.J.L. and seven by Jardine Matheson. The seven by Jardine Matheson, however, entitles this year had been given to the policy of the Committee had been to hold this race twice each year so as to give all Companies a fair chance of entering boats.

ROYAL NAVAL RESERVE. The Commodore then briefly outlined how the competition was inaugurated, and continuing said that he had only been here two or three months, and he thought the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club the most sporting body of men. By giving this prize they formed a link between the Colony and firms of ships plying to and fro at Hongkong. In addition Mr. Shields, Mr. Rouse and others had backed him up in time to get through a scheme for the formation of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and he hoped it would be an additional link between the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club and the Royal Navy. He thanked all who had helped in this matter, because at first they had met with a great deal of opposition, but it was entirely overcome by the energy of Mr. Shields and Mr. Rouse. Commodore Elliott then presented the trophy to Captain Lovegrove, master of the Empress of Asia, and a small silver cup to Mr. Morrell, the helmsman.

Captain Lovegrove thanked Commodore Elliott for the opportunity they had in entering a boat for the race. They had, he said, tried three times before, and he was glad they had won it at last. They had practically the same crew and the same coxswain, Mr. Morrell, as they had eighteen months ago. They had worked for it, and he was glad they had won the trophy at last.

SIR JOHN SIMON REBUTS GERMAN CHARGE

Prepared to Publish Documents and Records

A LAST MOMENT DISASTER

UNABLE TO ACCEPT THE REASONS GIVEN

IMPORTANT SPEECH

London, Oct. 17.

Sir John Simon and Captain Anthony Eden reached London by air from Paris to-day on their return from Geneva.

When he reached the Foreign Office, Sir John Simon's attention was called to a report of a statement made last night by Baron von Neurath suggesting that the British Foreign Secretary had not accurately represented Germany's viewpoint as conveyed to him on October 6th.

Sir John stated: "I should indeed be sorry if there were any difference on a matter of fact with Baron von Neurath. My fellow countrymen may rest assured that the suggested inaccuracy is not on my side."

It was on October 6th that the German Charge D'Affaires in London communicated to Sir John Germany's "observations" on the disarmament situation. A similar communication was made at the same time in Rome but not to the French or the United States Governments whose representatives had taken part in the earlier conversations.

John Simon.

These "observations" seriously affected the situation and immediately after hearing them, the British Foreign Secretary communicated them to the French and Italian Ambassadors in London.

Shortly after reaching London, the Foreign Secretary had a long conversation with the Prime Minister and Mr. Baldwin.—British Wireless.

MR. STANLEY BALDWIN'S DICTUM

Sir John Simon later this evening made a broadcast speech, which was linked up with the Empire through Daventry.

Britain still stands by the declaration made in December last year that Germany ought to receive equality of rights in a regime of security, said the Foreign Secretary in opening.

But, he added, a very serious fact had emerged since then which while not altering our pledge necessarily affects the detailed manner of its fulfilment.

POSITIVE ALARM.

Recent events, he said, have increased nervousness and the sense of positive alarm, which is the real reason why the heavily-armed States hesitate to weaken their armed forces.

"We all know the reasons for that anxiety," Sir John went on, "emphasising that there was more anxiety in England about the international situation than for many years past, while on the Continent it was more acute still."

GENEVA EFFORTS.

Sir John Simon then detailed the steps taken at Geneva in efforts to meet Germany's demands and with the object of getting a closer approach to a basis for an agreement.

But when he asked Germany last week exactly what she meant by "sample" weapons, he was unable to obtain an explanation. Instead of defining "samples," Germany's reply claimed a substantial re-armament from the very beginning.

THE FACTS.

Sir John Simon again rebutted von Neurath's accusation that he had been misstating the facts. "I am perfectly ready to publish the documents and the records," he said.

Germany's attitude at the last moment, he added, jeopardised, if it did not completely wreck, the hard work that they had all put into the conversations with goodwill.

He was totally unable to accept the reasons that Germany had given for her action.

In conclusion, he reiterated Mr. Stanley Baldwin's dictum that any nation that made disarmament impossible would not have a friend in the world.

BRITAIN'S AIMS.

Britain does not intend to arouse resentful feelings. She will try and promote the co-operation of all nations of goodwill and leave no stone unturned to seek an honourable solution of the great cause on which the hopes of mankind for the future of the race and of the world are so largely founded.—Reuter.

FRESH HARBIN FRICTION

SOVIET "SPIES" ARRESTED

TERRITORIAL DISPUTE

Harbin, Oct. 18.

The arrival in Harbin of the Manchukuo gunboat Lin Min, with three alleged O.G.P.U. spies on board, of whom one was a Soviet soldier in uniform, has been greeted by a fresh exchange of protests between the Russian and Manchukuo diplomatic representatives here.

The Soviet Consul-General, M. Slavutsky, contends that the men were arrested in Soviet territory and is demanding their immediate release.

The Manchukuo representative insists that they were arrested in Manchukuo territory in the vicinity of Taiho, and takes the opportunity to protest against the repeated infringements of Manchukuo's sovereign rights in the frontier zone, "of which the latest incident affords further conclusive proof."—Reuter.

LESS UNEMPLOYMENT ON TYNESIDE

Bigger Coal Exports; More Shipping

London, Oct. 17.

Conditions on the Tyne where the unemployment situation was the most acute, are continuing to show improvement.

To date 70,000 tons more of coal have been shipped from that area than in the corresponding period last year, while the number of ships laid up there is 64 fewer than a year ago.—British Wireless.

CANTON & JAPAN

SERIOUS VIEW OF INCIDENTS

COASTAL DEFENCE DISCUSSION

Canton, Oct. 18.

How serious is the view the Canton Administration takes of the recent incident of the kidnapping of a Chinese Korean in the eastern suburbs of Canton and the landing of a party of Japanese marines at Waiyang District, in eastern Kwangtung, from a Japanese gunboat, is revealed by statements made by high Canton officials.

The incidents mentioned were considered in conjunction with defence problems in South-Western China and exhaustively discussed at yesterday's meeting of the South-West Political Council which Mr. Eugene Chen attended.

An official said that definite decisions were reached on these problems.

In considering the diplomatic and defence problems, the South-West Political Council envisages the possibility of the coming of a grave crisis in the Pacific.—Central News Agency.

VOLUNTEER ROUTE MARCH

SCOTTISH COMPANY TO PARADE

The Scottish Company of the Volunteers are carrying out a route march in Kowloon to-morrow evening, starting at 5.45 p.m. from the Star Ferry.

The Company will march to Kowloon Docks, where refreshments will be served.

RIVERBOAT WRECKED

TIN TIN BEACHED AT MACAO

BADLY HOLED LAST NIGHT

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, Oct. 18.

As a result of bad mishap last night, the s.s. "Tin Tin" of the Macao-Kongmoon service lies badly holed on a mud bank not far from the entrance to Macao harbour.

The vessel was returning to Macao from Hongkong yesterday evening, after her annual overhaul, for survey at Macao preparatory to resuming the service between Macao and Kongmoon, and appears to have fouled one of the stone breakwaters at the entrance to the Macao harbour, being badly damaged, at about 8.30 p.m.

The crew immediately sent out distress signals and the vessel was steered for the big mudbank lying between Macao and Taipa Island where launches from the Macao Government Harbour authorities took off the crew.

Commander L. Carmona, Harbour Master, was soon on the scene and left a Water Police launch to guard the vessel.

The "Tin Tin" now lies on her side, with the police launch standing by, fortunately, out of the way of shipping.

ULM WELL ON WAY TO NEW RECORD

Now Flying From Alor Star To Sourabaya

Alor Star, Oct. 18.

Mr. C. T. Ulm, the Australian aviator, who left Calcutta at 9.05 a.m. yesterday morning, arrived at Alor Star this morning, re-fuelled and took off again for Sourabaya.

He is now well ahead of Sir Charles Kingsford Smith's schedule and, barring mishap, should establish a new record without any difficulty, by twenty-four hours at least.—Reuter.

MR. SUGIMURA IN SHANGHAI

PLANS VISIT TO CHIANG KAI-SHEK

Shanghai, Oct. 18.

Mr. Sugimura, the Japanese diplomat, arrived here yesterday.

In an interview with pressmen, he denied that any specific mission was attached to his present trip to China. But he said he was prepared to proceed to Nanking to call on the Nanking leaders and would subsequently proceed to Nanchang to visit Marshal Chiang Kai-shek. He also intimated that he might visit Canton.—Central News Agency.

DISAPPEARANCE OF A JUNK

WITH LARGE CARGO OF SUGAR

Wai Sang, the master of trading junk No. T2009H, has reported to the police the disappearance of his junk which had been lying off the Hung Cheung Shipyard, Cheung-shawan, yesterday.

He says he left the junk in the charge of two foks yesterday afternoon, and when he returned at 10.30 p.m. found it had disappeared. It held a cargo of 214 sacks of sugar.

LOCAL BUS SERVICES

STATEMENT BY H.K. MANAGER

SUBJECT TO PREJUDICE

PROGRAMME FOR IMPROVEMENT

In an interview with a Telegraph representative to-day, Mr. Ngan Shing-kwan, Managing Director of the China Motor Bus Co., outlined the position of the Company in regard to the bus services on the Island, which with those of the mainland, have been receiving official attention on account of complaints from the public.

While admitting engine breakdowns on the No. 3 Route, which have interfered with an efficient working of the service on the middle levels, he pointed out that the vehicles were already in an old and much used condition when his Company were, in a manner of saying, compelled to buy them. The matter was being remedied by the purchase of new vehicles which, with the additional garage equipment being brought out, would commit his Company to a further expenditure of more than a lakh.

EXCELLENT SCHEDULE

The complaints against this route, could hardly be tenable, he said, in the case of the service on the lower levels, which in his opinion, had been maintaining an excellent time schedule, and concerning which he had received no reports, at any rate within recent times, suggesting otherwise than that it was giving general satisfaction.

Further questioned, Mr. Ngan said he was fully aware of a public "pessimism" which, rightly or wrongly, had been attached to any business of a public utility character run by Chinese.

PUBLIC PREJUDICE.

It appeared, he said, that on stopping into this public conveyance business they could not altogether escape this prejudice, as people began to expect all manner of dreadful occurrences just because it was the China Motor Bus Co. who were running it.

The position was that people would strain themselves to look closely here and there for faults, and when these occurred as they had prepared themselves to expect, would make a considerable fuss (Continued on Page 11.)

REBEL LEADERS' MESSAGE

EXPLAIN RETIREMENT

Peking, Oct. 18.

The revolt staged by Fang Chen-wu and Chi Hung-chang has been definitely terminated by a circular telegram jointly issued by the two rebel leaders announcing their retirement.

The telegram explains the circumstances in which they are forced to retire while carefully avoiding attacking the Central Government.

The rebel forces formerly under their command are concentrating in the Shunyi district pending Government orders.—Central News Agency.

FINE WEATHER

The Royal Observatory reports that pressure is highest over the Pacific to the east of Japan. The typhoon is situated less than 120 miles south-east of Ishigaki-jima moving N.W.

Local forecast:—North winds, moderate; fine.

Attention is drawn to the Telegraph's new mystery serial story, the second instalment of which is to be found in Page Three. The story is by the well-known author, Mr. Jefferson Farson, and is entitled "Shadows by the Sea."

GENEVA INCIDENT

Nazi Journalist Apologises

Geneva, Oct. 17. The German journalist, who insulted Mr. Arthur Henderson to-day, subsequently called on him and offered an apology, which Mr. Henderson accepted saying that he regarded the incident as closed.—Reuter.

BIG INSURANCE BANKRUPTCY

RECEIVERSHIP ORDERED

CHICAGO CASE

Chicago, Oct. 17. A sensation has been caused in the insurance world by news of the impending liquidation of the National Life Insurance Company of the United States.

The Superior Court Judge in Chicago to-day ordered the appointment of a Receiver to take over the affairs of the company.

The National Life Insurance Company has policies to a value of $197,000,000 outstanding.

The company is regarded as another victim of the depression and the collapse of security values from the high levels of a few years ago.

NEW PRISONER TAKES POISON

A dramatic scene occurred in the receiving room of Victoria Gaol yesterday when a newly sentenced prisoner took poison.

He was Yam Wai, only 22 years of age, who had been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for an opium offence.

Rushed to the prison hospital, the man died later. It is believed that he took arsenic. An inquest will be held to-day.

At the opening of the inquest this afternoon, the Coroner remarked that the jury would be asked to enquire into a very unusual case. A large number of witnesses would be called.

The jury empanelled was: Mr. G. A. Harriman (foreman), Mr. W. E. Denson, and Mr. G. L. T. Cate.

Children Are Happiest When Busiest

By Olive Roberts Barton

All day long Alec had slouched around and moped.

"Why don't you get your bicycle?" his mother said.

"I'm tired of that old bicycle."

"Old! You haven't had it a month! Go and give Duke a bath. That will keep you busy and dear only knows he needs it."

But Alec didn't care so much about that either.

"You were crazy for a dog and promised to take care of him. You were tired of him in two weeks."

"I'm not tired of him. But sometimes he's no fun. He just lies around to-day and sleeps."

"That's because it's hot. Well—let me see. I'll let you go to the pool if Eddie can go along."

A Mother's Problem

"I don't know what you can do then, Alec. You have a whole playroom full of toys. You have more things to play with than any child I know."

Alec made a face. "I suppose you're worrying me for more money again. All right—go and get my bag. I can't have you lying around here growling like a bear."

"I've seen both the movies." "All right then. I'm going up and lie down. If you won't do anything, you won't, that's all. But I think you're just a spoiled little boy."

Alec sat for a while, then lifted his head. He heard hammering over in the direction of Eddie's house.

He found Eddie patching a hole in the back porch. Eddie's back porch was full of holes, and the front porch, and even some of the windows of his house.

In fact Eddie's house and Eddie's whole life was as different from Alec's as a sparrow's is from a canary's.

"Geel!" declared Alec enviously. "Can I help? Why didn't you tell me you were having so much fun?"

"This ain't fun. That is work. I gotta do it," said Eddie. "The babe nearly busted his ankle this morning."

"I'll trade you," bargained Alec. "I'll let you ride my bike all afternoon if you let me saw those boards and nail 'em in. And I'll lend you Duke all day to-morrow and you can read my new book all the day after and—"

"Come on and help. I can't go now, but I'll borrow your bike sometime. Now you take this board and you lay it—"

The boys worked all afternoon.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Take Sun-Tanning Slowly at First

By Alicia Hart

A mottled suntan is nothing to brag about. Much better not to go in for suntan than to get splashed.

A girl who achieves her suntan in a bathing suit that ends somewhere around the shoulder blades and then appears in a low-necked evening dress that shows her untanned back below the rich glowing skin is, alas, no infrequent sight.

The thing to do is to go at suntan gradually, as I have always Alec's face lost its fretful look. He went home dirty and tired—and happy.

"I wish I was Eddie," he said. "He has a good time. I never have anything to do. What did you bring me, Dad?"

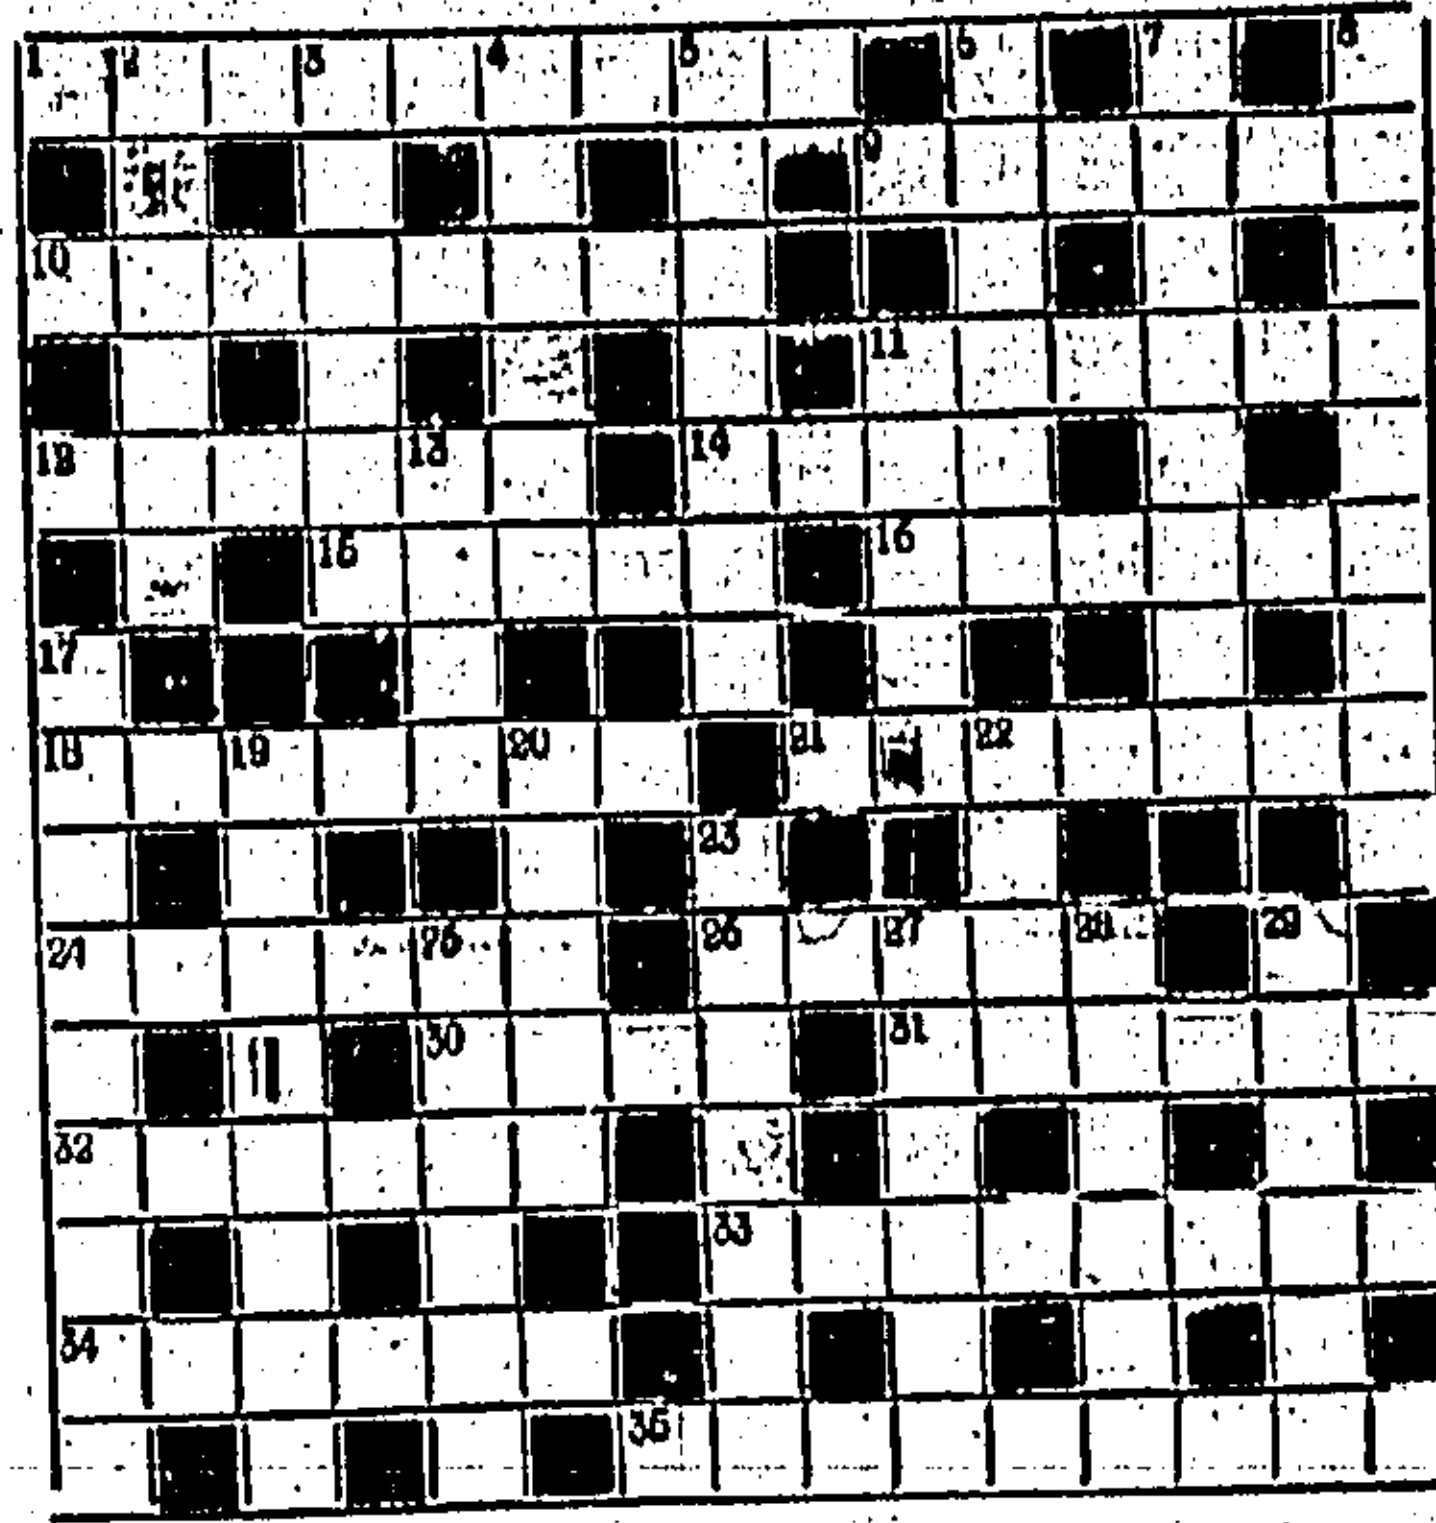

urged. But do it thoroughly! You can't get the upper insides of your arms, for instance, properly suntanned without actually turning them to the sun the proper number of hours to enrich their skin as the forearm is enriched in tone.

Nor can you get that under-the-chin part of you the right brown to go with your neck and nose without upflitting your face, properly covered, while your under-the-chin tans.

The best way to get an even suntan is to use one of the popular suntan oils. Spread this all over your skin before you venture forth. Then, remembering the way a rottiessie browns his chickens, turn yourself about methodically, exposing the portions of your neck, arms and shoulders that need it most. The best way to get your back really brown is to wear a halter-strapped pajama suit. You can so easily loosen the top of the halter-strap while lying on your stomach!

Take this sun-tanning easily. But do a thorough job from the first.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

SYNOPSIS.

LEONARD SEFTON arrives at the seaside town of Greville to find the residence of the Mervin Hotel, a man named Fyne. Most of the guests have left owing to the scandal Sefton meets the "book" on the beach doing a little detective work. A mysterious stranger also appears. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

"At the Mervin Hotel."

Miss Jessica Fyne, proprietress and (it now appeared) proprietress of the Mervin Hotel, looked up from her ledger and saw a pleasant young man standing before her. For a moment she forgot her ledger. It may have been because he looked so particularly pleasant; he was certainly trying to. But the moment passed, and her mind reverted speedily to facts and figures, and to the purely commercial hope that this man had come to book a room, and not merely to have tea.

His first words proved that he had come with the former object, and in reply to his enquiry she said that she had a room, and would show it to him.

"Do you know how long you will be requiring it for?" she asked, in a business-like voice.

Leonard Sefton sat upon an impulse to reply, "Until we have found your father," and remarked that he was not sure.

"Probably a week, at least," he said. "I suppose you can let me have one with a sea view?"

"All the rooms have sea views," she answered, with a little smile. "We are on the point, you see, I could let you have one of our best rooms overlooking the tennis lawn—it's just been vacated."

"Sounds exactly what I'd like," nodded Leonard. "You're most delightfully situated here."

She took a key, numbered "Seven," off a hook, and emerged from her little office. As she did so, a rather glum-looking man came down the wide staircase, and approached. Leonard possessed a keen sense of observation, which this afternoon was particularly alert, and he did not miss the glance of apprehension with which Miss Fyne watched the glum man draw near; but, all at once, the glumness vanished, and a smile took its place.

"It's Sefton, isn't it?" exclaimed the no longer glum one. "What brings you to these parts?"

"Hallo, Morley," replied Leonard, holding out his hand. "I heard there was a first-class tennis lawn at this hotel, and was drawn as a moth to a candle—and now I find you here, I'm bang in the flame! How's your game?"

"As good as in the Cambridge days!"

"It's—er—pretty fair," responded Morley. "How's yours?"

"A shade on the rusty side, old chap. What about a knock-up after tea? I can see, I'll keep you busy during the next few days. I'm just off to book my room."

"After tea? Yes, I'd—er—like it," murmured Morley, and looked vaguely towards Miss Fyne.

"You know I don't mind," she said. "I want you to go on just as usual."

Morley hesitated, suddenly nodded, called "See you later, then," to Leonard, and went out into the grounds. He had been on the point of giving notice, and going to Scarborough. The place was getting on his nerves. But perhaps, with a little hard tennis, it might be worth while hanging on for a bit. He'd rather like to see what Sefton would make of his now American service.

Miss Fyne turned, and preceded her now guest up the wide, soft-carpeted staircase. Leonard noticed many little touches about the place—pretty pale blue curtains framing the windows, water-colours on the walls, a generous hanging basket of flowers—which, he felt convinced, were not due to Miss Fyne's father; and he paid his tribute to the straight back ahead of him. All women like charming things, but not all women know how to gather them together, and to display them.

Suddenly just as they were reaching Room No. Seven, Miss Fyne asked, over her shoulder, "How did you know the tennis lawn was a first-class one?"

"I guessed it," replied Leonard. "A hotel as good as this couldn't have a bad tennis-lawn."

"You're making up your mind quickly about the hotel," she said, as she inserted the key.

"That's habit of mine," he answered. "I nearly always make up my mind quickly. By the way, do we have to get your permission to use the lawn?"

"What is the arrangement here?"

"My permission? Of course not."

"Good. Only I thought—from Mr. Morley's attitude—that there might be some rule of the sort."

He spoke carelessly, but waited with interest for her reply.

"No—that wasn't his reason," she murmured, and opened the door.

No. Seven was certainly a wonderful room. It had lately been occupied by a rich old gentleman and his neuroathetic wife, who had left in rather a hurry. There was so much space that the large double bed was hardly noticed as one entered, and one's eye was immediately carried to the wide French windows which opened on to a balcony overlooking the main grounds. The deep blue sea sparkled in the western sun. One side of the wreck, a little to the east of the point, gleamed like a sheet of gold, its grim story glided temporarily out of the spectator's mind, like the hidden history of an unhappy girl who cheats her knowledge with a smile. Leonard gave a sigh of satisfaction as he advanced into the room. Behind him, the girl's voice made him turn.

"I think I ought to tell you the reason, before you decide," she said.

"It's not necessary, because I've already decided," responded Leonard. "And, besides—I already know the reason."

She looked at him quickly, while he went on, "Good Lord, Miss Fyne, why on earth should people start leaving your hotel because of your misfortune? I agree with your staunch little boots, whom I met on the sands just now. Nice little fellow, that. He's quite angry with your visitors for deserting you, just when you most need 'em to stay."

"Yes, I've got one good friend," answered Miss Fyne, smiling faintly.

"Perhaps you've got two," retorted Leonard, looking at her squarely. "Can you think of any way I can help?"

She turned away for a moment, then swung back again, angry with herself for having been on the point of breaking down.

"You have helped me already," she said. "I'm sure Mr. Morley was about to give notice when he met you and you spoke about tennis."

"Yes, and I'll go on speaking to him about tennis," returned Leonard. "Why should he have given notice? Why should any of them?"

"Well—it's not been very happy here during the past few days. I've done my best to keep cheerful."

"Yes, I can see that!"

"—but it's not been easy, and, of course, everything's changed. It's difficult to be in a holiday mood when policemen and detectives are constantly coming—and then I can't make them understand that I want them to act just as usual when I'm about."

Leonard nodded, sympathetically. "Some of them would be a bit nervous, naturally," he observed, "but what bents me is why so many of them have gone."

"I don't understand that, either," answered Miss Fyne, slowly. "It almost seems—"

"It almost seems—what?" he encouraged her, as she hesitated. "As though there were something else."

"Well, if there is, we'll get to the bottom of it," exclaimed Leonard, briskly. "Look here, Miss Fyne, I'm keeping you from your duties, but can you give me five minutes more and tell me just what happened on the day your father disappeared? A week ago, wasn't it?"

"Yes, August 13th."

"Right. Was he ill or anything? Please let me hear the whole story."

"There isn't much to tell," began Miss Fyne. "No. Father wasn't ill. He was in splendid health. He went through the day as usual and his manner wasn't any different when he said good-night to me and went up to his room. At least—no. I don't think it was any different."

"That means you do," commented Leonard. "In what way might he have been a little different?"

"You're a very good cross-examiner," she smiled, flushing a little. "But one mustn't make the mistake of making things appear important when they really aren't. I mean—that—afterwards—one thinks of all sorts of little points."

The Very Idea!

By Eddie Kelly No-vice

EVER since last week, when we took our first bridge lesson, we have felt that at last we are breaking into Hongkong society.

We got a bit boxed up about the conventions for a start, but fortunately in the game we play in everyone is unconventional.

We take off our collars and ties, litter up the table with half a dozen bottles of beer and get to work.

In case any of our readers would like to learn bridge, we are going to give you a glossary of the terms used.

We have purposely left out several of the terms used by our partner, as we don't think they would look nice in this column.

BRIDGE is played by four people. There are several important bridges in the world, including London Bridge, Manhattan Bridge and Sydney Harbour Bridge.

CLUB.—Hodge of office worn by dummy or any bystander. It should be used whenever a revoke is noticed or when your partner goes down six doubled.

DOUBLE is two of anything e.g., double whiskey, two whistles etc. "Seeing Double" is mistaking the deuce for the Ace.

DEAL.—Piece of wood. "Square Deal", the card table. See "Plain Dealer".

CULBERTSON.—Sissy name, similar to Cuthbert. In bridge it means a hand containing four Queens.

ELY.—Famous Cathedral in England. Bridge is said to have originated there when Alfred the Great wanted to cross a river.

LEAD.—Heavy metal, used for weighing end of club.—(q. v.)

FASS.—Invitation to the player nearest to the bottle of whiskey.

SHORT SUIT.—Underpants.

POST MORTEM.—Inquest on victim of a "Slam" in clubs.

SLAM.—Bat on the head with a club (q. v.).

BID.—Short for Bridget. Sometimes also shortened to Bridge.

HONOURS.—Mistake. There is no honour in Bridge.

TRUMP.—Bugle blown aboard ship, and in the Army and Navy, to signify that it's time to quit.

CENT A POINT.—Vicious system used in bridge to pry money out of anybody who holds poor cards. Anyone who plays this kind of bridge had no cents.

1933 VERSION

Old Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
To fetch the poor dog a bone,
As she got there
Eric saw it was bare,

There was a knock on the door and an elegant young man said,
"Madam, why, oh why, keep your meat in an out-of-date unhygienic cupboard? Most terribly unhealthy! Now I represent the Koopit and Freezie-It Home Refrigerator Company . . . etc."

Him: You didn't forget to Packard liquor, did you?

He: No, but we Winton drank it all but the keg of beer.

Him: Let's tappet and distributor around. (Looks for beer.) Viking we do, it's stolen.

He: Phoebe luck are against us.
How can we go on a bendix and make Whippett?

Him: Gas it'll be oil right fuel get some more. (Enter a group Essex or seven others.)

He: Hey, you can't horn in here.
Klaxon beer for us or get out. Quit Mooning around.

Someone: Alen-to have some.
I'll dash Overland and see.
(Enter Simon Lee with beer)

Him: Do. Soto be O.K. This Stearns Knight into day. LaSa's, get drunk.

He: (One hour later): Willys Knight is fine. Let's go out and get a straight eight or two at the Con.

Him: Valve we do Delco crazy when we clutch them. A Kissel do me good, though.

You: I'm Stude and I feel sick.
(Ho flops on the floor.)

Me: Let's Mack him get Hupp.
He: I don't want to Diana night like this.

Voices: Star any more beer?
Another voice: What Durant for your money?

Him: Auburn up. I'll give you a Scowey jaw.
He: Ethyl right. No-Nox ever hurt me.
Voice: Chandler imagine that.

HERMITS I HAVE MET

By TREVOR ALLEN

THEY are an interesting minority—the people who count the world well lost. I have met many in the course of my wanderings, and have always wondered what sudden change came into their lives, what psychological twist, that they should turn their backs on the teeming life of city and society and seek recompense in solitude.

One of them is a still young, attractive woman who, two years ago, was a well-known dancer. She had travelled England and the Continent for years amid all the excitement and glimmers of stage life, knowing the thrill of applause from crowded "houses," the worship of admirers who sent her costly bouquets and pleaded to be allowed to take her out to dine or sup at fashionable expensive resorts.

TIED OF LONDON.

She danced her way from Scandinavia to the Riviera, enjoying life unreservedly, taking avidly whatever it brought her in professional popularity and romantic friendships. She was the ballarina—and a clever and charming one at that—who seemed fated to live in a perpetual whirl of people, theatres and parties.

One day, while performing, her partner made a mis-step and threw her rather heavily. She was not seriously injured, but had to relinquish her dancing for a time. She became preoccupied with the usual round of London social life as it is lived by most artists who have talents, good looks and hosts of friends.

Then it happened that she had to visit friends by the sea, and found herself on the shore of a wide estuary of the East Coast, looking across to a lonely stretch of country apparently devoid of habitation, except for an occasional farmhouse or cottage. She said to herself, with sudden conviction: "I have had enough of London. I am going to live there!"

She had to make a detour inland of about thirty miles to reach the place, but eventually found a farmer on that lonely coast who was willing to lease her a small piece of land by the seawall.

DRAMA OF A LONELY SHORE.

She installed a hut, and then bought a small houseboat and settled there in a solitude which would have haunted most women inured to city life, especially the life of the faded ballerina.

It was not merely a midsummer day's dream. She lived alone right through the winter of mists and gales, and the only people she saw for days, apart from the farmer—and his family—were occasional fishermen far out over the mud flats at low tide.

One night, in the most terrific storm of mid-winter, she awoke to find the dark to find the boat tossing and storm-racked, and stepped out of her bunk into two feet of water. She knew instinctively what had happened. The boat had slipped its moorings and was apparently drifting out to sea on the wind-lashed tide.

It was black dark outside; the wind was roaring, the rain slashing down, and the boat had a bad list. "Well, I suppose this is the end," she reflected.

She groped in the dark, found matches and cigarettes by sheer luck, and, perched as high as possible, smoked and waited for dawn, or whatever might befall her before it came. When, after what seemed an eternity, dawn glimmered over the sea, she found she had drifted on to the marsh; a mud bank had providentially saved her from being carried right out to sea.

That experience might have daunted any woman. All she did was to get the boat moored up again more securely and carry on. By the end of the winter she had read all her books at least three times.

But she was happy. She can say to-day, in all sincerity, "I never lived until I came here. I have never been so happy in my life."

She counted the world well lost. By forgoing pleasures she had found happiness and happiness of a deep, abiding kind. She hardly ever thought of London; her triumphal tour of the Continent had become a far-off dream; the peace and beauty of that lonely shore were now part of her.

In a quiet lane skirting the hills above the beautiful Wye one evening I encountered a youngish man working at a landscape canvas propped on an old stone wall. He was dressed in rough tweeds; happiness and serenity were reflected in his eyes.

"Who is that fellow?" I asked my host, who was walking with me.

"Ch, he is the son of a man with a title," was the reply. "Some years ago he led a big scientific expedition up the Amazon. He was engaged in quite a lot of things of that kind, then he came down here on a visit, and stayed. He lives in a cottage quite alone, and is always painting. He's a quiet fellow—seldom talks to anyone."

He, too, appeared to count the world well lost.

Nearby, in the heart of a wood on a steep hillside accessible only by rough paths, lives an elderly woman belonging to a rich family which gives its name to a product that is a by-word in every home. She dresses in all old coat and man's breeches and shares her shack with fowls and—if I remember—a goat or two.

She is a woman of education and breeding, yet she prefers to live the life of a hermit in an isolated spot where no one intrudes. In winter the only paths become minor torrents. My host and I tried for an hour to find the place, but became lost in a tangled wilderness.

Sometimes the roses of solitude turn into strangling weeds. I shall not forget visiting a gaunt house on a western hilltop which had been occupied by two very old ladies—sisters—who for years had lived as recluses. A neighbour who was called in one day found one of them dead in a chair and the other, half demented, crooning over her: "Wake her up! I can't get her to wake up!"

They had existed in one upper room of indescribable squalor, and sharing even that with a flock of fowls and several mangy cats. The floor was covered inches deep with filth; the chimney had become blocked; the only outlet for the smoke from the fire was the

AUSTRIAN PLOT

The timely discovery of the Nazi plot to seize the Linz garrison is a reminder that Dr. Dollfuss's most difficult problems are still ahead of him. The Hitlerite Fascists are not to be expected to surrender their pot ambition of union with the Reich without a bitter struggle, while the hostility of the Socialists, aroused keenly by the Chancellor's rigorous suppressive measures, lends further instability to his position. Time, however, is on his side. The Heimwehr have now gone into his camp unreservedly, and Prince von Starhemberg, their leader, professes to complete allegiance to the spirit of the Fatherland Front, Dr. Dollfuss's nationalistic organisation. As soon as the combined forces are completely welded, the Chancellor will have Austria in an iron grip. The joke is on Herr Hitler. The new Austria will be of definitely Italian leanings and definitely anti-German—the direct result of tactical blunders by Hitler's over-keen supporters.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Almost every aspect of unemployment has been closely studied in the last few weeks by Ministry of Labour experts engaged in drafting the new Unemployment Insurance Bill. The secrets of the projected legislation have been well kept, but it will undoubtedly be the most important Bill to be submitted to Parliament during the next session. Occupational training institutions are to be established, designed both to teach crafts to youthful unemployed and to keep them fit, while the scope of insurance will be greatly extended so as to embrace nearly every class of worker. The principal object, as far as can be gathered, is to place unemployment insurance on a permanently solvent basis for a generation, and for that purpose, a special commission responsible to the Ministry of Labour will probably be appointed to take full charge of the responsibilities of administration. The aim is to dispose of this issue once and for all. Whether success will reward the effort depends very much upon whether the Means Test will be preserved or abolished. There is no support from those most affected while that remains on the Statute Book.

A PARKING PROBLEM

Commander Cowland, of the Royal Naval Yard, must have been one of the most surprised men in Hongkong yesterday morning. He had parked his car in a "No Parking" area for an hour and fifty minutes on his own admission. The police officer concerned thought it was nearer two hours. The worthy magistrate dismissed the summons because of a certain "vagueness" about the time of the arrival of the car. Did the Commander smile?

RADIATOR CAPS

Talking of cars, the safety of the poor pedestrian would seem to suggest the need for a regulation dealing with radiator caps. One particular make of car on sale to-day is provided with a cap from which a sharp spike projects forwards for nearly six inches. It adds a needless peril to the ordinary dangers of the road. A slight accident might easily be converted into a tragedy. A radiator cap of this type should be totally prohibited.

AMERICA'S POSITION

Yesterday's announcement shows clearly that in the not-distant future America must make up her mind just how far she will go in helping to maintain the peace of Europe. That peace is a very unstable thing. It has been, ever since the war. It was unstable for decades before the war. There is nothing in sight to indicate that it is going to be any more stable in the immediate future. This is because there has not, for many decades, been a situation in Europe which was not deeply displeasing to certain important minorities. Before 1914, France wanted to regain her lost provinces, Polish patriots dreamed of independence, restless groups in the Hapsburg empire schemed for separation; since the war the central powers, particularly Germany, have felt the Versailles treaty as an irksome restriction which must some day be ended. If America stands aloof the disarmament programme must collapse. A new war will become more than likely, and U.S.A. will have no assurance whatever that she will be any more able to keep out of it than of the last one.

WAR PHILOSOPHY

The more one thinks about the German Chancellor's broadcast speech in justification of Germany's secession from the League, the more one becomes amazed at his habit of rushing his fancies. In most respects it was reasonable and restrained. It was the speech of a man arguing a case with intelligence and moderation, and, but for the cause which inspired it, would have made an excellent impression, would have proved even more valuable than his famous Reichstag speech in improving Germany's position in the court of world opinion. But it ignored the realities. If Herr Hitler seeks a peaceable working-out of Germany's problems, as the speech implied, the biggest obstacle in his path is one that his own followers have put there. Militarism is taught in Nazi school as an ideal, war itself is glorified as good in itself, as essential to the "purification" of the nation. The dying warrior must gladly shed his blood as in liberation to his National God. Such a doctrine, officially approved, could not help but arouse all of the fears and distrusts of pre-war days. The most persuasively worded appeal for world understanding could not overcome the conviction of peril induced by what appears to be a mass effort to break down every pacifist tendency within the Reich. Herr Hitler cannot blame foreign opinion if it fears that the object of his policies is to gain time and to dull criticism abroad while he pushes on his preparations for the German military renaissance. Neither can he complain if those subject to such fears immediately interpret as complete confirmation, withdrawal from the League when it is made plain that the alarm has given rise to a caution which insists that Germany cannot have all she wants all at once. German logic should be able to follow the mental processes which have produced the present situation of deadlock. The Nazi creed may be good for Germany; carried to its ultimate conclusion it must appear as a menace to the rest of the world. So long as the National Socialist revolution concerns only the people within the borders of the Reich, no interference can be warranted. As soon as it steps outside, it becomes an issue of first-rank importance to every nation. As pointed out by The Times, the moral disarmament of Germany is the factor that will outweigh all other problems in seeking a solution of the crisis. If Herr Hitler is sincere in his wish for an era of peace, he must give his words the logic of action. Germany can give full rein to its love of discipline and its public spirit without preaching; as did Captain von Papen; that means endorsement of a national philosophy of preparedness for the sacrifices of war.

HERR HITLER'S PLANS FOR FUTURE

ON SIDE OF PEACE

LONG TALK IN BERLIN

Berlin, Oct. 17. Herr Hitler gave a very favourable impression of his intentions in the course of a fifty-minute interview with the American Ambassador, Mr. Dodd.

At its conclusion, Mr. Dodd said he felt that the Chancellor was honestly perturbed over the Nazi assaults and was determined to end them.

Hitler also emphasised his desire for peace and aversion of war. He seemed anxious, said the Ambassador, to resume or continue contact with the rest of the world.

GERMANY'S INTENTIONS.

A semi-official statement emphasises that it is Germany's intention to observe the provisions of the Versailles Treaty and of the League Covenant.

At the same time, a denial is issued of a report that Germany has sent a Note to Signor Mussolini suggesting the re-opening of the disarmament negotiations.

ROME DENIAL.

Reuter's Rome correspondent made enquiries in official quarters with a similar result, an emphatic denial that Germany had notified her readiness to continue the disarmament discussions outside the League.

Meanwhile, Berlin political quarters draw attention to the importance of the statement by the American delegation at Geneva that they are not interested in the political or the purely European aspects of disarmament and that the United States is not in any way politically allied to any European Power.

The latter declaration is interpreted as a significant hint which is warmly welcomed in Germany.—Reuter.

VON NEURATH'S REPLY.

"We discovered with disappointment and astonishment that a basis for disarmament negotiations no longer existed because the British plan, which had been unanimously adopted, no longer existed. It was not even recognised by its originators and was decisively changed." Baron von Neurath told foreign journalists to-day, when questioned as to Germany's grounds for withdrawal from Geneva.

The key position, he said, lay in the question whether the division of nations into groups of victors and vanquished was to be perpetuated or the principle recognised that all states were to be members of a unity of nations with equal rights.

PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN.

Outside of officialdom, Germany is now waiting for replies from responsible foreign statesmen. The Government itself is completely occupied in preparing an extensive propaganda drive throughout the country.

Chancellor Hitler has summoned all important Nazi leaders to Berlin for a series of conferences, to acquaint them with his policies for the coming week.

Telegrams are still arriving from all parts of the country, supporting the Chancellor's policy, and include one from Dr. von Bohlen, head of the Krupp works, on behalf of the League of German Industrialists.—Reuter.

HEAVY SENTENCES ON CRIMINALS

RETURNED AFTER DEPORTATION

Two life banished who were sentenced to seven years' imprisonment each in 1924 for armed robbery, were ordered to five years' hard labour for a breach of the Deportation Order by the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, at Criminal Sessions this morning.

Prisoners were Pang Sau alias Pang Pat and Ho Yam-sing who were arrested together on October 10. They pleaded guilty to the charges. In the Police Judge's Court later Ho Yam-sing was sentenced to a further three years for unlawful possession of arms.

Sin Ming also admitted a charge of breach of Deportation Order and was sentenced to a year's hard labour.

Another returned deportee, Chan Sing, alias Ho Hol, received 18 months.

FOUND CHEQUE

THEN TRIED TO CASH IT

FOKI CHARGED

A Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation cheque for $500 formed the subject of a charge of larceny brought against a shop foki, Mak Man-lok, 32, on he appeared before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning.

Complainant was Lau Chik-chung, manager of the Po Wing Cheung Import and Export firm, 101, Des Voeux Road West.

Defendant admitted picking up the cheque, but pleaded that as he did not know where the firm was he took it to the bank.

Detective-sergeant McRobbie said that yesterday morning complainant sent his foki to cash the cheque. On the way to the bank he lost it and immediately returned to the shop and reported the matter. The manager went to the bank to stop payment, and while there the defendant entered and tendered the cheque and asked for it to be cashed. He was questioned and later handed over to the Police authorities.

POLICE STEP IN.

Sergeant McRobbie—The complainant did not wish to charge the man, but there have been too many cases where complainants do not want to charge the defendants, as the property has been recovered. The Police are pushing this case, and we ask your Worship to take a serious view.

Defendant stated he picked up the cheque in Jervois Street and admitted that he asked for cash payment at the bank on behalf of another man.

Six weeks' hard labour was imposed.

INFRINGEMENT OF TRADE MARK

$100 COSTS AWARDED COMPLAINANTS

The Manager of the 'Shun Fat' Cheung shop, No. 448, Hennessy Road, was summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's court, for having had for sale soap to which a trade mark the property of the China Soap Company was applied.

Mr. J. B. Prentis appeared for Chung Kam-tong, of the China Soap Company. A female representative of the defendant firm said that she had purchased the soap from a man who had brought it round to the shop. She did not make any inquiries about the soap, and she knew nothing about the infringement.

Mr. Prentis added that they had made inquiries but had failed to find out the agents for the soap. If the defendant could only furnish the name of the person from whom she had bought the soap or other particulars it would serve their purpose.

Mr. Schofield added that it seemed to be a plea of guilty with extenuating circumstances.

Defendant said she had not paid the money for the soap.

Mr. Schofield awarded complainant $100 costs, and ordered the confiscation of the soap. The defendant was convicted and cautioned.

The P. and O. s.s. Mantua left Shanghai for this Port yesterday at 4 p.m. and is due here on the 20th instant at about 6 a.m.

SWING TO LABOUR

UNEMPLOYMENT AS MAIN ISSUE

Oslo, Oct. 18. A decided swing to Labour was the feature of the Norwegian general elections yesterday.

No fewer than twenty-two seats have been captured by Labour candidates from other parties, doubtless due to the extensive programme submitted by Labour for dealing with the problems of unemployment relief.

The Conservatives, who have so far lost ten seats, proposed to lighten taxation.

They had, prior to the election, refused an alliance with the new Fascist organisation, the National Union, headed by Major Quisling, a former member of the Cabinet, who is generally regarded as Norway's strong man.

STATE OF PARTIES.

The present state of the parties in the new Storting is as follows: Labour ..... 69 seats. Conservatives ..... 31 seats. Liberals ..... 24 seats. Agrarians ..... 22 seats. Other parties ..... 4 seats.—Reuter.

Kowloon Tong Residents' Complaint

NO WATER FOR CLOSETS

That the summons should not have been served on his clients but on the occupier of the premises was the contention of Mr. Horace Lo at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones on behalf of Mrs. Chan Leung-shi, Mrs. Chan Ho-shi and Man Kam Lo, who were summoned for failing to remove a European and a native water-closet from No. 8 Dorset Crescent, of which they were the owners.

In submitting his contention, Mr. Lo said residents of Kowloon Tong had a grievance against the Government in that after undertaking to supply water for water-closets, it had failed to do so.

The Magistrate—I am afraid, Mr. Lo, that that is not a matter for me to go into. All I am concerned with is that the Sanitary Board has given your clients three months to remove the water-closet and that they have failed to do so.

HAVE MATTER THRASHED OUT.

Mr. Lo.—The occupier of the premises is Mr. W.Y.M. Curtis. I have spoken to Mr. Curtis on the matter and he wants to have this case in Court in order to have the matter thrashed out.

Mr. Lo went on to say that under the lease of the house, the owner was powerless to do anything in the matter. They could not remove the water-closets without the permission of the occupier. They had sent workmen to the house, but Mr. Curtis had refused to let the workmen carry it out.

The Magistrate.—Well then, I'll make an order now for you and Mr. Curtis to see that the Sanitary Board notice shall be carried out within seven days from now.

His Worship explained that whether the Sanitary Board notice was reasonable or not was not a matter for him to say. It was a matter absolutely between Mr. Lo's clients and the Board. It was not for him to go behind that notice and say whether it was right or wrong.

MR. CURTIS INCLUDED.

What Mr. Lo had been saying all the time was that he had come to claim the Court's assistance in carrying out the order of the Sanitary Board because Mr. Curtis had been obstructing him. Now he would include Mr. Curtis in that order so that if Mr. Curtis obstructed him again, then Mr. Curtis would be disobeying the Court.

Mr. Lo.—But I don't think seven days would be sufficient for us to open negotiations with the Sanitary Board. We will probably not even receive a letter of acknowledgment in that time.

His Worship.—I don't think so. I think we will leave it at that.

DUPE OR ROBBER ACCOMPLICE?

WOMAN CHARGED AT SESSIONS

Ng Sze, widow, of Reclamation Road, Mongkok, pleaded not guilty to assisting at robbery at 174, Wanchai Road, when arraigned before the Police Judge, Mr. R.E. Lindell, at the Criminal Sessions this morning.

The jury empanelled to hear the case comprised Messrs. C. L. Farmer (foreman), C.J. Triggs, J.L. Robinson, F.S. Smith, S. de S. Sequeira, W.A. Zimmern, and S. F. Bishop.

Mr. H.K. Holmes, Crown Solicitor, recalled the circumstances of the robbery and said that prisoner was wittingly or unwittingly instrumental in giving entry to the robbers.

She, in fact, called out to Chan Hay that she had a present for him from Mr. Chan and when the door was partly opened she held it open and enabled men behind her to push into the room. The question was whether the woman was an innocent party or not. She had made a statement that she was employed by one of the robbers who gave her instructions which she carried out in ignorance of their purpose.

Chan Hay, Pun Yut-ying, conculine, and Chan Man gave evidence for the Crown.

The case is proceeding.

CHELSEA RELYING ON PRIESTLEY

THE SCOTTISH LEAGUE

(By "The Pilgrim")

For those, who, in addition to their ordinary interest in Home football, like to support their fancies with a little flutter, the programme this week is rather kind, and winners should not be over-difficult to select.

Arsenal and Blackburn should have a good day at home unless Priestley justifies his reputation by Chelsea's benefit. Leicester will meet the Highbury team in good form I think unless their recent recovery is a mere flash. The best spectacle of the day will be provided by Everton's home meeting with Tottenham. I think the defence of the visitors will balance the thrust of the Liverpool pool men's attack. Goals should be fairly plentiful.

Stoke City will test Bromwich Athlon severely but I don't think they will overcome the more polished home team.

STARTLING COLLAPSE. Bolton Wanderers pay a visit to Hailf where they may be expected to take both points, whilst Preston North End have a chance of redemption in their engagement with Bristol City, although I fancy the City's chances in view of their last performance.

Lincoln have suffered a startling collapse. Formerly they were noted for their consistency but their recent form suggests that Plymouth will have a day's outing. Bolton should have little difficulty in relieving Fulham of two points whilst Port Vale should strengthen their challenge to the leaders with a similar success against Bradford.

THIRD DIVISION. In the Southern Section Exeter meet Norwich who only need a brace to draw level with them at the top, but Crystal Palace have great prospects of topping both clubs when they entertain Cardiff. The Welshmen are going great Moss, the Arsenal goalkeeper, saving desperately against Hunt the Tottenham centre-forward. (Planet News).

ALL THE PLAY BUT LOSE

Local Footballers in Nanking DEFEATED BY SHANGHAI

Nanking, Oct. 17. Shanghai's football contingent to the National Games to-day disposed of the powerful Hongkong eleven by scoring the only goal of the match.

Before the game had been in progress more than a minute Shanghai was awarded a free kick and Feng Yun-yu put the ball into beautiful position in front of the Hongkong goal. Li Yi-chen headed into the net. Hongkong did most of the attacking throughout the game, and only spectacular play on the part of the Shanghai goalkeeper, Chow Hsien-yen, and his full backs, saved the day or the northerners. The Shanghai forwards were slow and rarely dangerous.

In the other semi-final game, Canton relieved the fortunes of the south, defeating Hanoi by 4 to 1. Canton now meets Shanghai for the title to-morrow.

Lincoln have suffered a startling collapse. Formerly they were noted for their consistency but their recent form suggests that Plymouth will have a day's outing. Bolton should have little difficulty in relieving Fulham of two points whilst Port Vale should strengthen their challenge to the leaders with a similar success against Bradford.

THIRD DIVISION. In the Southern Section Exeter meet Norwich who only need a brace to draw level with them at the top, but Crystal Palace have great prospects of topping both clubs when they entertain Cardiff. The Welshmen are going great guns just now and the Londoners will have a stiff struggle. I expect Chesterfield to go further ahead at New Brighton's expense but Tranmere should stick the pace with a win at Rotherham. The Walsall-Barnsley fixture will be worth seeing and the Arsenal debacle may be repeated here in a milder form.

Scottish football presents some easy pickings, notably Dundee and Motherwell as home winners. Queen of South may disappoint the Aberdeen crowd by securing at least one point.

CLUBHOUSE CHATTER BY "THE PILGRIM"

THE THIRD BACK GAME: PORTSMOUTH PLAYER'S LOSS: SPURS FIRST HOME DEFEAT SINCE 1931

TOM Parker, the old Arsenal back, who is now manager of Norwich City, has decided to persist in his recent introduction of the three-back game.

THAT he should have taken the third back plunge will not occasion much surprise in view of his Arsenal experience, and it is quite obvious that he has not forgotten, in a Soccer sense, his old spiritual home.

IN the fullness of time it may be that Herbert Chapman will find it necessary to take his own team to Norwich by air and show the Arsenal players how well "pupil Tom" has responded to the avuncular schoolmaster at Highbury.

FOOTBALL at its best was seen at Highbury when Arsenal and Glasgow Rangers, Football League and Scottish League champions respectively, met in the return game.

THE result—Rangers won comfortably for the second time—matter of little, for the exchanges were such as to delight beyond measure a crowd officially estimated at 35,000.

THE Arsenal not only lost the match but paid for the dinner given to the Rangers last evening and returned a compliment of last week by presenting souvenirs to their opponents, so that Scotland had a very good day.

RILEY has delighted White Hart Lane with his play. Against Liverpool he gave a fine exhibition, and won general admiration.

IT was learned after the Sheffield United-Portsmouth match recently that the Portsmouth secretary, Jack Tinn, had received a wire announcing the death of Septimus Rutherford, father, and asking him to withhold the sad news until the end of the match.

RUTHERFORD, the bereaved son, to whom general sympathy will be extended, played a prominent part in an unchanged team, and he it was who scored the only goal of the game to put his side at the head of the League.

WHEN victory over Southampton gave Millwall the honour of being the first team to win at the Dell this season, Ranson's hat-trick did the damage. Quick into his stride and accurate with his shooting, Ranson was very near the ideal centre-forward.

OF the football League side chosen to meet the Irish League at Preston only Crooks, Bastin and Brook had been previously honoured in this type of game.

PRESTON North End began as a Sunday School side. The famous 'Spurs' were once a club of youths who had difficulty in finding a bit of waste ground on which to have their weekly kick-about.

THEY used to have a whip round now and then to meet their minute expenses. Their directors now have to account to their shareholders for thousands of pounds every year.

FOOTBALL, which was once a pastime, has climbed into the big business class.

HOTSPURS home defeat by Liverpool was the first since Christmas Day of 1931.

FROM a Home "Daily"—"Blokhani awaits in hospital an operation for cartilage, Graham's knee improves. Turnbull tends a leg and Hookings an ankle. Pipe stood a recent test well and Yull may be fit by the week-end. Goodnight nurse!"

It is the force generated by the back and the shoulders which produces the length.

I do not think the hands and arms play a very active part. They are used mainly for guiding the ball and keeping it under control.

It has been said that Weaver gets his length by means of a jerk, but I think this is a mistake. Rather does he carry out the movement smoothly and rhythmically and, by accurately timing the exact moment when the back muscles begin to be exerted.

All players may not be able to attain Weaver's length. With the aid of the wind he has thrown so far as the far post. But I am convinced that all throws can be lengthened, if the correct methods are adopted, and if it is understood that length does not come through the arms.

To carry as far as the penalty area the trajectory of the ball must be higher than usual. This is another important thing to remember and practise.

5 MINUTES FOOTBALL

THE THROW IN
HOW TO GET THE BEST RESULTS
(By "Saracen")

When Weaver, the Newcastle United Wing half-back, startled everyone by his long throws from the side line nothing was more certain than that he would have many imitators. To-day most half backs have lengthened their throws very considerably.

Some in fact have come near to equalling Weaver's prodigious feats. A throw which lands the ball in the penalty area and from the bounce reaches the middle of goal is not only spectacular but highly dangerous especially if it has the element of surprise. It may come but up to now it has brought no effective counter and probably disorganization, and with the possibility that it may be scrambled into the net.

I think the tall player has an advantage in the long throw because the greater the height from which the ball can be flung the greater the leverage. It is not so much a movement with the arms as with the whole body and to get the right swing the feet should not be placed together. As a matter of fact Weaver, as well as those who have copied him successfully, takes a stride up to the line to deliver the ball, but at the moment he lets it go both feet are on the ground. This, of course, is essential otherwise the throw would be a foul.

HOW IT IS DONE. As the ball is taken up over the head the back is bent backwards. There is then an almost imperceptible pause as at the top of the golf swing. When the return movement is begun the weight of the shoulders comes in to act as a sort of lever and

MRS. WILLS-MOODY'S "COME-BACK"

NEXT YEAR
TO WIN"INVALID PLAYER
TO TAKE UP
SWIMMINGMOVIE OFFER REJECTED

San Francisco,

Oct. 17.

Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, the world's champion woman tennis player, announced to-day that she will return to competitive tennis.

Out again after receiving hospital treatment for an injury to her back which caused her to remain out of the Wightman Cup team this year and also to forfeit the American singles championship to Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Moody has expressed not only a craving to get back to the tennis courts, but perfect contentment in her present mode of living.

To this end she has rejected an offer to make a film.

"GET SO TIRED"

Interviewed by Reuter, the lady champion said:

"I shall play tennis again. I shall play in tournaments and I shall try to win."

"It is good to walk again, even if I can only go a few blocks at a time. The farthest I have gone so far is six blocks."

"I suppose it will take a long time to get back to championship form," reflected Mrs. Moody, then added "but I am going to play next year."

Referring to her more immediate form of exercise, Mrs. Moody said "I shall take up swimming first, as this is the only exercise I can have now, and because it keeps me off my feet. I get so tired standing."

Helen indicated that she had not received any offers to turn professional, and that she had rejected a movie offer "because I am content to live as I do now."

THRILLING HOCKEY.

Radio And Lincolns Draw

At Shamshuipo.

TOYNE OUTSTANDING.

Spectators were rewarded with an exciting friendly hockey match on the Shamshuipo ground yesterday afternoon, when the Lincolnshire Regiment played a drawn game with the Radio Sports Club, each side netting one goal.

The Lincolns played without the services of at least five of their regular men, Lt. Hocquard, who is on the football injured list, Lt. Tolson, Frey, Hackford, and Shamble, while the Radio made one change in their team, Kernell Singh coming in at right wing in place of Fran Singh.

Some brilliant exchanges featured the game, and within the first fifteen minutes of play, Avtar Singh gave the visitors the lead. Shortly after the resumption, Toyne equalized.

Toyne, who is the Lincolnshire regular right wing, played a hard game and was a constant source of worry to P. Singh, the Radio right back, who however, was steady.

Both teams strove hard to gain victory in the closing stages of play, Avtar Singh having had luck in not finding the net when Hollingsworth lay on the ground. The soldiers' forward line combined well, Toyne sending in some accurate passes.

Lincolns: Hollingsworth; Bentley, Wilkinson, Keomans, Hargreaves, Cottrell, Harrison, Morrell, Gutteridge, Lieut. Wilson, Toyne.

Radio: Man Singh; P. Singh, Mohinder Singh; Jagreet Singh, M. H. Hassan, J. S. Grewal; Karail Singh, G. Singh, Avtar Singh, Raiwant Singh, F. S. A. Kemp, (Goalkeeper). Reserve: Altar Singh.

LADIES WIN.

Playing their first friendly match of the season on the Marine ground yesterday afternoon, the St. Andrew's Club ladies were defeated by the Y.M.C.A. ladies by a goal to nil. Miss O. Brown was responsible for the point.

POLICE MAMAK WIN.

The Police commenced their Mamak Hockey Tournament fixtures this season in promising manner when they defeated the 12th Battery R.A.F. by five goals to one at Lyceum yesterday afternoon. Outstanding for the winners were Perkins and Gough, who each scored two goals, while the fifth was netted by Indian Constable 366.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD ON
1933 BOWLS SEASON

The curtain will be rung down on the very successful lawn bowls season of 1933 on Saturday October 28, when the Aitkenhead Shield match, between 12 Hongkong and Kowloon rinks will be played.

This was decided at a meeting of the general committee of the Lawn Bowls Association held yesterday.

Mr. J. Russell, President of the Association was in the chair and prior to discussing the Aitkenhead Shield contest he made reference to the Interport matches. He said he felt pleased that Hongkong had won and retained the Prentice Cup. He was very thankful to all those who had assisted in making the stay of the Shanghai players such a pleasant and enjoyable one.

The chairman later expressed the thanks of the Association to Mr. H. Hampton, the Hon. Secretary, for all the work he had done in connexion with the series. There had been a tremendous amount of work in getting the programmes arranged as well as in other directions. Others were also deserving of thanks for their work during the visit of the Shanghai players.

Mr. Russell apologised to the Indian R.C. for the Association's inability to provide them with a match against Shanghai. If it had been at all possible the Indian R.C. would have been given a game but it was thought that, being a young club, preference should be given to the more senior. He also apologised to the Club de Reccreio for the unavoidable cancellation of their game owing to rain interfering with the match against Victoria.

On the motion of the chairman it was agreed that the Association should purchase 24 spoons and that six be given to the Shanghai players who were in Hongkong for the Interports.

AITKENHEAD SHIELD.

It was decided that the Aitkenhead Shield contest be played at the Valley on the greens of the Craigengower C.C., the Police R.C. and the Civil Service C.C. on Saturday October 28, at 2.30 p.m., and that each side provide twelve rinks.

The Talkoo R.C., the Craigengower C.C., the Police R.C. and the Civil Service C.C. are each to provide eight players, the Hongkong Electric and the Yacht Club six each, and the Indian R.C. four; while each of the four Kowloon Clubs is to submit the names of twelve players.

After each club has submitted names to the Hon. Secretary a sub-committee will select the various rinks. Messrs. J. Russell, U. M. Omar, A. W. Grimmit and L. D. Jones were appointed the selection committee for Hongkong, and Messrs. H. Hampton, R. P. Phillips, B. Wyllie, and J. Kempton for Kowloon.

Each of the players participating will be charged $1 to defray the cost of souvenir spoons for the winners. A collection will be made during the match on behalf of St. Dunstan's Home.

INDIAN R.C. HOPES.

Before the meeting closed a representative of the Indian R.C. assured the Association that being a young club they did not expect to be given a match against Shanghai but they hoped that they would be considered in future.

The chairman replied that he hoped the Indian R.C. would attain the standard that would make it impossible for the Association to neglect them in any Interport competition.

Mention was made by the chairman of the invitation sent by the English Lawn Bowls Association to Hongkong Games next year. The chairman remarked that it had been mentioned in one local paper that seven names had already been submitted, but this was incorrect.

It was decided to leave the matter in abeyance until the return of some of the players who were in England during the past year.

SEVEN

RINKS CHOSEN

No less than seven Interporters will be included in the Kowloon Dock and Craigengower rink which meet in the final of the Spey Royal Cup on Saturday next.

The match is to be staged on the Civil Service green, and the match should provide one of the best contests of the year.

The rink will be as follows:

G. L. Buchanan J. V. Ramsey
B. W. Bradbury W. Greig
H. Beer J. C. Brown
U. M. Omar (skip) R. Lapsley (skip)

C. Richards, the Shanghai Interport bowler, who stayed over after the team departed for the North, is being given a roll up this afternoon by members of the Craigengower C.C. and advantage is being taken for the Spey Cup rink to have a practice before the final on Saturday.

Richards will skip a quartette to oppose the Craigengower four, and it is expected that quite a strong rink will be played.

ARMY TENNIS FINAL.

Private Ronan Wins The

Singles Title.

PRIZES DISTRIBUTED.

Playing against a somewhat listless opponent, Pte. J. Ronan, (South Wales Borderers) easily defeated Sgt. C. Halford (S.W. Borderers) in straight sets, in the final of the Army Other Ranks Singles Tennis Competition at Sookunpoo yesterday, winning 6-1, 6-8.

At the conclusion of the match, the presentation of prizes by the President of the Army Club, Capt. P. S. Cannon, A.A.C., took place, to the doubles and singles champions and runners-up. Before making the presentation, Capt. Cannon, briefly thanked the officials of the Club and the competitors for the spirit in which they had entered.

STRONG BATTING

The Shanghai cricket team, which, it is anticipated will come down to Hongkong for the forthcoming Interport justified their selection when they defeated another picked side by 78 runs.

The winners were the first to bat, knocking up 199 for the loss of 9 wickets, and on putting their opponents in, they were able to dismiss them for 121 runs. As there was still time for play after the innings had been concluded, a further short knock was given the Interport batsmen and they continued on until the light failed.

The batting strength of the winners was revealed as practically every man in the team knocked up a creditable total. L. F. Stokes as opening bat scored 48, while the next highest return was Sinclair's 34. Leach and Madar each got 24. On the other team, F. E. T. Marshall celebrated his return to local cricket by knocking up 40 in excellent style, including in his total a couple of sixes that landed well out of the grounds. L. T. T. Begg scored 23 and the remainder of the team failed to withstand the bowling.

The scores were:

Willie Smith And His
Tour of The East

No man ever had a more pleasingly enthusiastic reception among the sports people of the East than had I on my first tour four years ago, writes Willie Smith, who will shortly be making his second trip East of Suez.

If I except the now historic case of my trousers being stolen, everything on that tour made up to one long succession of enjoyable days and nights among the hospitable sports lovers in the East. I believe, too, that the tour was instructive, for those people who watched my game, my mail for some months afterwards (and still to-day if in lesser volume) was heavy with correspondence from the East, expressive of the pleasure that billiards enthusiasts had derived from watching the games.

It is with the hope of renewing many desirable acquaintances that my coming tour, organized by Burroughes and Watts, is planned, and with the additional hope that I shall be enabled to help still further to enjoy billiards those who are attracted to the game.

A LINOTYPE OPERATOR.

In my amateur days I watched the professionals as often as I might, but a linotype operator working on a daily paper (i.e. night duty) has little chance in that direction. Nevertheless, I picked up a lot of hints from the few opportunities I had and I am certain that I should never have been enabled to make the progress I have made had it not been for the learning I acquired by watching the better players and studying their methods.

I found that the more I saw of Billiards the more I became fascinated and the more I learned. As I learned the keener became my ambition. Practice, of course, was necessary. I got little of it, but without actual tuition I was able to make a break of 270 before I quit the linotype and took up Billiards as a profession. Even after becoming a professional, my Billiards never became a task; it was always a pleasure whether it was practice or match play.

DRIVE FOR FRESH PLAYERS.

Another ambition of mine is that this tour will bring into the game fresh players to whom as yet it is only a name.

This billiards game is so easy to enjoy; it is so full of simple, recreational pleasure that one feels it ought to be brought to the notice of more and more people. That has been a big part of my job in recent years, bringing the fascination of Billiards to the notice of more and more people. I reckon that there are 2,000,000 people in Great Britain playing billiards solely for the enjoyment they get out of it. In America it is said there are 8,000,000 players. Surely billiards has more adherents than has any game under the sun. And all those people cannot ha-

Nanking, Oct. 17. The twenty-year-old Chinese, Hsu Cheng-chi, from Batavia, was crowned China's new tennis champion to-day, when he beat Shanghai's No. 1 singles player, Kiao Hooi-hye, by 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.—Reuter.

SWIMMING RESULTS.

Nanking, Oct. 16. Swimming results to-day were: 1,000 Metres Free Style: First Heat, 1. Sze Hing-chie (Lunling) 2. Kwok Chen-hung (Hongkong) 3. Shok Kam-pui (Kwangtung); Time: 23 min. 12.2 secs. (A national record). Second Heat, 1. Wang Hong-lung (Fukien) 2. Chen Pook-shun (Kwangtung) 3. Wong Sun-man (Hongkong); Time: 20 min. 54.5 secs. Third Heat, 1. Sze Hing-chie (Lunling) 2. Sun Hien (Tsingtao) 3. Lo Kat-sing (Kwangtung); Time: 27 min. 10.8 seconds.—Yah Kiu Yat Po.

SHOOTING INCIDENT.

Nanking, Oct. 16. In connexion with the shooting incident yesterday, the competitors arrived at the conclusion that unless proper action be taken to punish the soldiers, they would have no other alternative but to withdraw from further competitions.

It was a shame, they maintained, that such a monstrous incident should have happened in Nanking, the seat of the National Government. The authorities here have telegraphed Marshal Chiang Kai-shek to ask for his advice in the matter.—Yah Kiu Yat Po.

Hongkong fell before Shanghai in the volleyball, losing by three to one, and Canton defeated Chekiang three-nil. Canton thus enters the final against Shanghai. The game will be played to-morrow.

Hopel eliminated Hongkong's basketball team, scoring four runs to their opponents' three. Hopel meets Canton in the final to-morrow.

In the indoor basketball, Canton beat Nanking 14 to 6, and plays Shanghai to-morrow in the final.—Reuter.

SEAMEN'S RACE.

C.P.R. Liner's Boat

Wins Event.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Ideal conditions favoured the 20th. bi-annual race for the Trocass Trophy yesterday afternoon, when six ships' life boats faced the starter at Channel Rocks. The first boat to complete the four mile course was the Empress of Asia (C.P.R.), and the s.s. Taiyuan was second place. Three boats were disqualified for failing to keep to the regulations of the course, and one failed to finish.

The race was watched by Commodore Elliott, Royal Navy, Mr. A. L. Shields, Commodore of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, Mr. R. S. Rouse, Vice-Commodore, Mr. R. J. Vernal and Mr. M. L. Deville, joint secretaries Captain D. Skinner, of Jardine, Matheson, Captain A. R. McEachran, China Navigation Company, Mrs. Skinner, Mrs. McEachran and several others from launches.

The sea was calm and a fresh southeasterly wind was blowing when the six boats got off to one of the finest starts seen in this series of races.

The Empress of Asia soon took the lead with the other boats straggling behind. At Kowloon Rock, the first mark, it was over thirty yards ahead of the others, and by the time it reached the mark off the Yacht Club it held such a commanding lead that there appeared to be no chance of overtaking it.

The two boats from the s.s. Hingang trailed behind, followed by the Taiyuan, Kwangchow and the Kaying. By the time the last mark was reached, the Kaying boat had given up the race, but the Taiyuan was seen to make a determined effort to catch up the two Hingang boats, which were about thirty yards ahead.

Rowing steadily it decreased the lead, and eventually overtook, but the other got home before he only to be disqualified for not taking the correct course. The Hingang boat under Mr. R. Lane fouled the mark off the Yacht Club when taking the turn, and was disqualified.

The time taken by the winning boat was 58 minutes, 29 seconds. The times of the other boats were not clocked owing to a misunderstanding as to the finishing mark.

The boats entered were from the Empress of Asia, two from the s.s. Hingang under Mr. R. Lane and Mr. Balce, one from the s.s. Kaying under Mr. Winterbottom, one from the s.s. Taiyuan under Mr. Hinde and one from the s.s. Kwangchow under Mr. Mitchell. The Kaying, Taiyuan and Kwangchow belong to Butterfield and Swire, and the Hingang boats to Jardine, Matheson.

A SPLENDID WIN.

Addressing the gathering at the presentation, Commodore Frank Elliott said he wished to congratulate Mr. Morrell, the 6th. officer of the Empress of Asia, and the helmsman of the winning boat. He and his merry men had pulled splendidly round the four mile course in their heavy boat, and his seamanship was very good. The second boat was the s.s. Taiyuan. The third and fourth were Jardine Matheson, but these had been disqualified as the third had covered six oars and the fourth had fouled a mark. It was the first time that the Canadian Pacific Line had won the race, which previously had been won five times by the Douglas Company; seven by the J.C.C. and seven by Jardine Matheson. The entrants this year had been fewer, but the policy of the Committee had been to hold the race twice each year so as to give all Companies a fair chance of entering boats.

ROYAL NAVAL RESERVE.

The Commodore then briefly outlined how the competition was inaugurated, and continuing said that he had only been here two or three months, and he thought the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club the most sporting body of men. By giving this prize they formed a link between the Colony and firms of ships plying to and from Hongkong. In addition Mr. Shields, Mr. Rouse and others had backed him up in time to get through a scheme for the formation of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserves, and he hoped it would be an additional link between the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club and the Royal Navy. He thanked all who had helped in this matter, because at first they had met with a great deal of opposition, but it was entirely overcome by the energy of Mr. Shields and Mr. Rouse.

Commodore Elliott then presented the trophy to Captain Lovegrove, master of the Empress of Asia, and a small silver cup to Mr. Morrell, the helmsman.

Captain Lovegrove thanked Commodore Elliott for the opportunity they had had in entering a boat for the race. They had, he said, tried three times before, and he was glad they had won it at last. They had practically the same crew and the same coxswain, Mr. Morrell, as they had eighteen months ago. They had worked for it, and he was glad they had won the trophy at last.

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 2,480,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: Journal report on yesterday's market: Prices followed back and forth all day long following grains and finally staidled at the close with excellent gains, in some instances recovering yesterday's losses due to a final rally on an announcement that the Government is seeking wheat and other supplies for purposes of winter relief. Our New York Office Cable (This morning)

Stocks: The market recovered from an apparent overcast condition in sympathy with strength in the commodity markets. The rally is quite likely to carry into Wednesday. Wheat: A wildly erratic market finally absorbed liquidation and rallied well. The Government's Emergency Relief Corporation bought cash and futures heavily. Buying side is favoured on all dips. Cotton: The market advanced on heavy buying which is partly attributed to the Government buying, reversal in the trend of other markets and reported tight spot situation. The presence of shorts and with inflation holdings, a better position to hold advances. Silver: The market closed firm in sympathy with the rise in wheat. Cable received at 15 a.m. during our Night Service "Further commodity decline may renew currency inflation possibilities."

window. The few remnants of dilapidated furniture were thick with soot, and the old ladies themselves so black with it that they looked like negroes. Years ago, before they retired into seclusion on a small allowance, they were professional women of good breeding who ran a school.

THE TRAGIC SIDE

In some cases, of course, there is nothing more significant behind the change from multitude to solitude than a deep-seated love of the country which at last is given the opportunity of fulfillment. In others the motive is not so simple.

There are people of sensibility who carry on responsible jobs in the great world of affairs for the major part of their lives. They fight, as everyone of the world's workers must fight, giving blows and taking them. They earn to spend, and spend to earn. They are of the striving legion Wordsworth had in mind when he wrote: "The world is too much with us;

late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

One day they wake to the futility of it all—and perhaps the iniquity. They see the tragic side of the battle rather than the thrills. Perhaps they have been hurt by someone they trusted or become the victims of that underhand practice which is an integral part of the struggle for success and survival. The world seems to them too much a place of hard blows, dog eat dog, and beggar-my-neighbour. Ascendancy, they decide, is not worth having at the price; and they quietly, resolutely withdraw.

DEFEATIST PHILOSOPHY?

Some experience of this kind has befallen most of the people I have met who are happy to count the world well lost. They are the sensitive plants in the jungle of predatory weeds. They can fight up to a point, but beyond that point they become philosophers. "Where is the sense in it all?" they ask. "I'd rather live in a cottage and tend my garden."

Judged by the positive dynamic standards of society, it is a defeatist philosophy. But I have noticed that these fugitives from a world that is too much with us enjoy compensations which their unrepenting fellows lack.

Washington, Oct. 17.

The extent of large payments made to Mr. Albert Wiggin, the chairman of the Chase National Bank, was revealed to-day during the Senate banking investigation.

The hearing was confined to matters dealing with the Chase Bank and the Chase Securities Corporation.

It was stated that Mr. Wiggin received bonuses exceeding a hundred thousand dollars every year, in addition to his normal salary of $200,000 per annum and in addition to a provision for a pension of $100,000 per annum after his retirement.

These heavy payments were made, it was pointed out, despite the fact that the bank had been experiencing heavy losses in recent years.

Mr. Wiggin was also a director of fifty-nine other big concerns, from which he was drawing annual payments ranging from $300 to $300,000 per annum.

MR. WIGGIN'S CAREER.

Mr. Wiggin started his career as a bank clerk 48 years ago and he was assistant cashier in a bank at Boston until 1897, when he began his climb to prominence by securing an appointment as vice-president of the Eliot National Bank in Boston. He first became connected with the Chase National Bank in 1904, was vice-president till 1911, president from 1911 to 1917, chairman of the board from 1918 to 1921, chairman of the board and president from 1921 to 1928 and chairman of the board afterwards.—Reuter.

GERMAN DEBTS.

Mr. Wiggin testified that John D. Rockefeller, Junior, was the biggest shareholder in the Chase Bank.

He also said that the German debt to all American banks in 1933 totalled between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000. The Chase share of this was originally about $100,000,000, but he managed to get this amount down to below $40,000,000.

He acknowledged that the Chase Bank had suffered "very large losses" for which he accepted responsibility as the "commander-in-chief."—Reuter.

WOMEN SENT TO PRISON"WHITE SLAVE" TRAFFIC

Appearing on remand before Mr. Schofield this morning, Wong Kiu, was sentenced to one year's hard labour for procuring a twelve-year-old girl for the purpose of prostitution, and in Mut-kwai was sentenced to eight months' hard labour for having harboured the girl. Both accused were women.

Inspector Elston said that the girl would be thirteen in February. She lived with her mother at West Point, and had never left home before. Last Friday night she went out, and did not return.

Inquiries were made, and it was found that the girl went with first defendant for a walk, and slept the night at her home. Next day, second defendant was asked to take the girl to Cheung Chau. Second defendant was at first reluctant, but later agreed, and paid for the girl's passage to Cheung Chau. The girl was later found in a brothel in Cheung Chau.

WOMAN ROBBED OF 20 CENTS

BY FALSE PRETENCES

Yu Chau, 32, unemployed, was sent to prison for three months by Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning for obtaining 20 cents by false pretences.

Sub-Inspector Elston stated that on Sunday defendant approached complainant, who had the appearance of being an amah, and asked her if she wanted employment. She replied she did not but her sister-in-law was seeking work.

The defendant promised a job as cook at a boarding house. He took complainant to the place and asked her to wait outside while he went inside to make enquiries, and asked her for twenty cents. A district watchman nearby scented trouble and arrested the man.

Inspector Elston added that the boarding house people had stated defendant did enter but he did not ask for any work. He merely said "What time do ships leave for Swatow?"

SUBSTITUTE FOR COTTONNEW PLANT EVOLVED
BY GERMAN

Cologne.

German government experts have been ordered to examine the possibilities of exploiting yucca fibre as a substitute for cotton and jute.

Yucca is a fibrous plant which has been evolved by Herr Berz, a gentleman farmer at Oberstedten, in Hesse, during a period of several years.

Herr Berz has taken out patents for his plant. It is claimed for the yucca plant that it yields a fibre which may be applied to various purposes. Practical experiments so far have proved that the yarn produced is suitable for manufacturing packing threads, cordage, carpets, sackcloth and even linen.

The new yucca plant is already widely known, but it seems to be only recently that the German government has become interested in it. It is said to be very easy to grow and its cultivation would result in considerable employment and profit for the agricultural industry.

LOCAL BUS SERVICES

whereas, if committed by other hands, they would not have been so much noticed for the minor character of which perhaps they were.

DOING UTMOST.

It was in this atmosphere, he would not say of hostility, that his Company had entered the business and this atmosphere his fellow directors and he were doing their utmost to dissipate by the institution of a service approaching as closely as the times and circumstances permitted.

He pointed out that they had already one of the largest, if not the largest, garages and workshops in the Colony at Whitfield, with an area of 20,000 square feet and equipped with all that was required for an efficient management of the many routes the Company operated. That would prove the Company were prepared to spend money.

In this connexion he characterized as "grossly unfair" sundry disparaging statements alleging the Company were engaging in a policy of cut and pare by a drastic curtailment of over-head expenses, this leading, these statements further suggested, to efficiency of working being considerably interfered with.

BUSINESS DEPRESSION.

Mr. Ngan said the business depression in the Colony was a reality that must have struck everybody, and it was no more than in accordance with the best business principles to cut down expenses where the circumstances required. He declared that this had not involved, although in view of the general business depression they could well have done so, any great cuts in the drivers' wages, the average of which, he said, was maintained at over $50. This compared very favourably with the standard being maintained in these times of business stress.

It might be that much of the apprehension expressed in the past was due to an impression abroad of an inadequate supervision.

EUROPEAN SUPERVISOR.

If concern was being felt here because of the lack of European supervision, which seemed to be what the public required, he would like to allay these fears by bringing to their notice that a European with considerable previous experience of these routes, was being employed by the Company to supervise the service and urgent repairs work.

Complaints, Mr. Ngan said, were inevitable with the best ordered of utility companies, but they could be best attended to only on a prompt report to the Company concerned, to enable an early investigation.

He promised this close attention to legitimate complaints from bus users, but doubted whether the best course was being followed when these complaints instead of being reported to the Company, were expressed in the Press.

CLIMATIC PROBLEM.

In reply to another query, Mr. Ngan said he could not at the moment say when the new engines being ordered would be put on the roads. The matter was being held up at the moment by the selection of a type of body best suited to local needs. Much of the framework in the Home-built vehicles which came into the Company's possession when it took over the franchise, was found to have seriously deteriorated from dry-rot. The question of a vehicle body solving climatic requirements and be best suited to island service conditions, was being taken up with the Police Department, from whom a decision was being awaited.

PENAL CLAUSES.

Before terminating the interview, our representative alluded to the "penal clauses" in the franchise, which the Police authorities have intimated they would invoke in the last resort, in the event of either of the two franchise holders not showing a distinct improvement in their respective services, Mr. Ngan made this reply:

"It is hardly to be anticipated that a decision involving an extreme measure such as is implied in the cancellation of our licence would be reached without a very full consideration of the position."

WANCHAI FIRE

A small fire occurred this morning at about 11 a.m. in a tea-shop in Spring Garden Lane, Wanchai. Three appliances arrived to find that a quantity of grease accumulated in the chimney had taken fire and was blazing. Control was obtained within a few minutes.

THE TUNG WAH
HOSPITALGovernor Lays Foundation StoneOLD GIVES PLACE TO NEW.

An important forward step in the history of progress and expansion of the Tung Wah Hospital was recorded yesterday, with the laying by His Excellency the Governor (Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E.) of the foundation stone of the new Hospital building in course of construction at Po Yan Street.

In a notable address, the Chairman of the Hospital Directorate (Mr. Pun Hui-cho), traced the history of the institution from the time of its foundation more than 60 years ago, and spoke of the plans initiated by His Excellency last year resulting in the momentous decision to entirely rebuild the Hospital on the most up-to-date lines.

On his arrival, accompanied by Lady Peel, his A. D. C. Captain R. F. Walter, R.A., and the Secretary for Chinese Affairs Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, His Excellency was welcomed by the Chairman and other members of the Directorate, and by the Chinese members of the Legislative Council.

The official party then proceeded to the building site, on which work was already well under way. Performing the ceremony in the traditional manner, with a blackwood mallet and a silver trowel, His Excellency said: "I declare this stone to be well and truly laid, and I offer my sincere wishes for the future of the building."

On the stone appears the following inscription:

This Foundation Stone was laid by

H. E. Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E.

Governor of Hongkong

On the 17th Day of October, 1933.

Addressing those present the Chairman, Mr. Pun Hui-cho, said:

History of Hospital.

To-day we are performing the ceremony of laying the Foundation Stone of the new building. His Excellency the Governor has been so kind as to come to lay the Foundation Stone, and all you ladies and gentlemen are so good as to be present to give us your support. The splendid gathering here is a great glory to the Hospital, and my colleagues and I are deeply impressed.

The Hospital was founded by Mr. Leung Hok-chau and other gentlemen, and its foundation stone was laid by His Excellency Sir R. G. MacDonnell, the then Governor, on the 9th April, 1870. This was sixty-three years ago, and our predecessors did a noble work.

But the buildings have become no longer so suitable for use as a Hospital, being old-fashioned and ill-ventilated. On their inspection of the Hospital on the 1st June, 1932, the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, the Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso and the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Chinese Representatives on the Legislative Council, also found that some of the wards were over-crowded, and had not enough light. They suggested in the Inspection Book that the Hospital should be rebuilt. On the 11th January, 1933, His Excellency came to inspect the Hospital, and advised us as to the necessity of rebuilding and developing the old Hospital, which had become dark and no longer suitable for the purpose of up-to-date work.

His Excellency's Speech.

His Excellency said:

Mr. Pun Hui-cho, Ladies and Gentlemen,

It is a great pleasure to me to-day to lay the foundation stone of this new building. My remarks will be brief as I have had, during my short time in Hongkong, so many opportunities of testifying to the excellent work done by the Tung Wah and allied hospitals that I find it difficult to find any new expressions of appreciation.

There is no doubt that one of its main watchwords is Progress. Since I arrived in Hongkong I have been associated with the following extensions, namely: two wings of the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital in 1930; two final wings which opened in December 1932, though I anticipate that the work done will scarcely prove to be correct; an infectious diseases ward at the Kwong Wah Hospital which I opened in December 1931. This list only represents the extensions with which I myself have been associated, but the history of these hospitals shows that ever since the original foundation constant ad-

HERMITS HAVE MET

JAPANESE LINE INSTITUTES
NEW SERVICE

The N.Y.K. Line has tentatively decided to open a service to Malta in the Mediterranean Sea. The S.S. Lyons Maru, which left Kobe on September 1, was the first Japanese boat to call there.

The decision was reached in accordance with the Osaka Chamber of Commerce and Industry's campaign for opening the Malta service, in view of the increased shipments there from Japan.

This Tung Wah Hospital was, as Mr. Pun Hui-cho has told us, opened by Sir Richard Macdonnell over 61 years ago. It has done excellent work for the Colony, but is now out of date, dark and congested and, owing to its rambling construction, difficult to administer. I congratulate, therefore, the late Committee on initiating a scheme to re-build this institution and I congratulate the present Committee on proceeding so promptly with the scheme which was approved. I understand that the total cost of the scheme, excluding the equipment of the two wings which form the second part of the scheme, is estimated at $200,000, and I congratulate the present Directors in having already raised $202,000 towards this scheme. This reflects great credit on their energy and persistence as well as on the generosity of the various donors. (Applause).

The Greater Cost.

I am glad that modern ideas have been followed and that more space and ventilation are being allowed for, whilst still making provision for a considerable number of beds. At the same time there is no doubt that the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital is better situated for convalescents and I should always like to see full advantage being taken of that institution. The Tung Wah, however, serves an admirable purpose in the position in which it is situated for it deals with cases in the most congested part of the town.

These extensions and additional buildings naturally involve greater running expenses, and I was glad to have the Secretary of State's approval of the old Po Leung Kuk site being used for the erection of revenue producing tenements, and his further approval, notified to me only a few weeks ago, of the site of the old hospital, where the "San Yuen" is standing, being utilized for a similar purpose. This will lessen the strain on the Committee for, as is well known, committees in the past have had to donate considerable sums from their own pockets to carry on the good work.

I have much pleasure in laying the foundation stone of this new building and in tendering to the Committee my sincere good wishes for the continued prosperity of the institution (applause).

Hon. Mr. Kotewall's Speech.

Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, said: Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, said: Your Excellency, Mr. Chairman, Ladies and gentlemen: To-day's function opens a new chapter in the history of the Tung Wah Hospital; it marks the first step towards the realisation of the project for replacing the Hospital main building which has served the public for sixty-one years, with a new structure more in accordance with the modern conception of hospital-designing.

Less than two years have elapsed since the suggestion for rebuilding was first mooted on the 6th January, 1932, and already the foundation-stone of the first section of the scheme is laid. This speaks volumes for the energy of the Special Committee appointed to formulate the scheme, and the hard work and perseverance of the present Committee who, in spite of these bad times, have raised the large sum of over $200,000 towards the cost of the building. (Applause.) Of this amount the Directors themselves have donated no small portion.

Comprehensive Scheme.

But this comprehensive scheme of rebuilding the Hospital, section by section, would not have materialised had it not received the sympathetic and keen support of the late Secretary for Chinese Affairs at the very initial stage. The last official act which Mr. E. R. Hallifax performed in Hongkong was, I believe, to discuss with his successor the Hon. Mr. A. E. Wood, the three senior Directors of the Hospital, and the four Chinese members of the two Councils, the outline of the present scheme, and the project of utilizing what is called the "New Hospital Site" for the erection of tenement houses so as to help the three Hospitals. In meeting the additional running expenses entailed by the steady growth of their activities.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Some day I hope to see the premium for honours abolished in contract.

In the first place, it seems unjust that you should deal a player all the cards in the deck—enough to allow him to make a small or a grand slam against you—and then, in addition to the slam bonus, the trick count and the game bonus, give him 100 to 150 points for holding all of those good cards.

But even worse than that is the fact that the average beginner, when holding honours, allows it to influence his bidding. How often have you seen the beginner, when holding 150 aces, insist that the hand be played at no trump?

Take for example, the following hand which was played in a club duplicate game. Out of the 11 tables playing, only three pairs obtained a plus score. The others played the hand at either seven hearts or seven no trump, and of course neither can be made.

The Bidding

The proper bidding is as follows: South and West pass and North bids one no trump. South bids two diamonds. While he can make a one over one spade bid, it is better for him to bid the diamonds so that he can show the distribution to his partner.

Over two diamonds North should bid three hearts. South will now bid three spades. North, with his 150 aces, can now bid four no trump, inviting a slam.

South should then bid five spades—robbing the spades at this point definitely shows a six-card diamond suit and a five-card spade suit. The diamonds were bid first showing that they were longer than the spades, and the spades have been bid and robbing showing the suit to be a five-carder. North, with his strong hand, is now justified in bidding seven spades.

The Play

With the king of clubs opening by West, the declarer wins with the ace in dummy, discarding a heart from his own hand. The ace of diamonds is cashed and then a club is ruffed in declarer's hand. The last losing club in dummy is discarded on the king of diamonds.

Then the jack of hearts is won with dummy's ace, and a small heart is ruffed with the jack of spades. The eight of spades is played and overtaken with the nine.

Another small heart is ruffed with the queen of spades. The king of spades is led and overtaken by the ace, and the hand is solid.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

STORY OF TAI O KILLING

The killing of Wan Kau, (42) dweller of Keung Shan Village, near Tai O, in August, by one of the inhabitants of the island was the subject of a charge of manslaughter at the Criminal Sessions this morning.

Wan Wan, aged 33, a farmer, was the prisoner and he admitted
"accidentally striking" Wan Kau on August 28.

The jury which heard the case consisted of Messrs. H. S. Jones (Foreman), J. Hoare, Chua Keh-lai, A. J. Manton, A. R. Tavares, V. M. Barradas, and D. Marshall.

Mr. G. J. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, said all the inhabitants of Lantau Island, on which the incident occurred were related. The Crown would say that Wan Kau was eating a meal while sitting on a stool on the edge of a high bank near his house when prisoner and two women approached. Something passed between the two men and it was alleged that without Wan Kau striking a blow, he was struck and pushed off the stool down the bank. In the meantime accused picked up a pole and two witnesses would say that he struck at the man whilst others would say he was already holding the pole and that he threw it down and escaped.

THE EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. B. Mackie was called and stated that his examination of the body revealed that death was due to a ruptured spleen caused by a fall or blow.

The widow Chen Tang-tai gave evidence that the two men were

PORK AND CORN PRODUCTION

AMERICAN SCHEME ANNOUNCED

Washington, Oct. 17.
A control programme for corn and pig production has been issued by Mr. Wallace.

It is reported to include provision for processing taxes to compensate the farmers who reduce their corn acreage by at least 28 per cent. and their farrowing of pigs by at least 25 per cent.
—Reuter.

apparently on good terms prior to the incident. Following a quarrel when they met on the evening of the fatality, accused struck her husband with a bamboo pole. He died an hour or so later.

Evidence was given by Wan Chu, son, Wan Ngan-tai, brother, and Wan Shu-fuk, clansman.

Sergeant Bentley said Wan Kau was dead when he saw him three hours after the incident.

A Chinese constable said he arrested prisoner half a mile from his dwelling a few days after the fatality.

The case is proceeding.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Mrs. Cole and family wish to thank all friends for sympathy and floral tributes in their recent bereavement. Grateful thanks are also extended to the Doctor and Nursing Staff of the Matilda Hospital for their untiring care and attention.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

CHINESE PARTNER REMANDED

Chan Chung-tong, a partner in the Hop Sang Loong firm, No. 134, Gloucester Road, was charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having embezzled $571.54 the property of the firm on various dates between May 22 and October 2.

Mr. H. L. Denny, of Denny & Company, appeared for the complainant firm, and asked for one week's remand, which was granted.

The accused was allowed bail in $750, and Mr. Schofield informed him that if he could find part of the money it would if he were convicted go towards lessening his sentence.

FIVE YEARS' HARD LABOUR

FOR FOKI WHO AIDED ARMED ROBBERS

An echo of the armed robbery at 275, Des Voeux Road Central on July 17 was the appearance at the Criminal Sessions this morning of Lau Hung-yuet, formerly Foki at the Chung Hing Haberdashery Shop where the robbery was perpetrated.

Prisoner pleaded guilty to a charge that he, with others, robbed Chan Yui-tung of jewellery and $8,000 in cash and agreed that he took $600 himself. He was stated to have no previous criminal record and was sentenced by the Chief Justice to five years' hard labour.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY TOOK HIM FOR A RIDE.

Daringly dressed women tried to outrun him, wily diplomats laid traps for him as he flashed through the intricate mazes of the capital.
